21 Killed In Minneapolis Apartment Fire

HIGHER TOLL FEARED, FORTY OTHERS HURT

Ice-Coated Firemen Battle Flames With Temperature at 5 Below Zero.

BOILER BLAST BLAMED

Janitor Tells of Explosion in Basement; Roof Falls, Delays Hunt for Dead.

(By International News Service)

MINNEAPOLIS — Twenty-one bodies were recovered from the blazing Marlborough apartment hotel today and fire department searching squads continued to comb the still-smouldering building as officials feared the death toll may mount higher.

A temperature of five degrees below zero forced the fleeting residents of the apartment house to seek shelter in nearby stores and apartment buildings. This made it impossible for fire officials to make an immediate check of how many had escaped the flames.

The cold also hampered fire fighters as tons of ice formed on the streets and the building.

Another 40 persons who escaped into the streets in their nightclothing were taken to General and Swedish hospitals suffering burns, smoke suffocation and other injuries.

The east end of the roof of the three-story, middle class apartment hotel on the fringe of the Minneapolis business district collapsed after searching parties entered the building, hampering firemen in their hunt.

Gus Mathis, 32, was killed in a plunge from his third floor apartment after he had helped his wife, Stella, 28, to the window where a fireman waited to carry her to safety down a ladder. Mathis apparently was overcome by smoke while waiting for the fireman to return and toppled through the window to the street.

Otto Knaack, 49, janitor of the building, gave a clue to the origin of the fire when he told officials he was knocked backward ten feet by a blast in the boiler room shortly before 6 a. m. He said he

NEW QUAKE HITS

10 More Turkish Villages Levelled by Shocks.

ANKARA—(AP)—A new earthquake was reported today to have levelled 10 villages in the Yozgad area, adding to Turkey's quake damage of last week as the river Euphrates broke its banks, spreading terror in the region of southern Anatolia.

The Yozgad region, scene of widespread suffering from previous tremors, was thrown into a panic by the latest shocks. Hundreds of buildings collapsed. Nearly a thousand persons were made homeless.

The death toll, however, was expected to be slight, since the people had sufficient warning to flee to open spaces.

With scores of villages in western Anatolia still submerged, flooding of the thickly populated Euphrates valley was expected to increase the estimated 46,200 dead in the combined disasters.

WOUNDED UNITY ABOARD LINER

Blond, British Girl Friend of Hitler Bound for Home on Trip Fuehrer Arranged.

(By Associated Press)

CALAIS, France—Miss Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, ailing British friend of Adolf Hitler, left for Folkestone today on a channel steamer to which she was carried on a stretcher.

She was accompanied by her mother, Lady Redesdale, a sister, Deborah Vivien, and a nurse on the final leg of a homecoming trip said to have been arranged for the blond Englishwoman by the German Fuehrer himself.

The Redesdale party had spent the night at a hotel here.

She was understood to be suffering from a serious head injury. (The London Daily Mail said it was a gunshot wound and that surgeons would operate to remove the bullet.)

Lady Redesdale and Deborah Vivien, the youngest of Lord and Lady Redesdale's six daughter's spent last night with Miss Freeman-Mitford in a hotel.

Miss Freeman-Mitford's family has not divulged the nature of her injury, or illness. It was learned, however, she was in such a weakened condition that she would walk only a few steps unassisted.

Since her family learned she had an "accident" Aug. 9 in Munich, British newspaper variously have reported her to be suffering from a gunshot wound, poison, or some unspecified illness that followed a violent quarrel with Hitler during which he assailed Great Britain.

Before the war, Hitler once said he considered her a model of "Nordic beauty." Of Hitler, she said, "I think he is wonderful"; and of herself, "I am a woman Fascist." She admired Naziism.

Rooster Crows, Sleeps Depending on Amount of Smoke at Dawn.

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— This city's much-publicized smoke is mighty confusing to roosters announcing the dawn.

Joseph Miller put it this way:

"A rooster across the alley from my place crows at dawn, then the smoke comes up and it gets dark again, then the smoke goes away a little and he crows again; the pall gets darker and lighter, darker and lighter, and he keeps on crowing all morning."

BOARD BUYS 2 PLAYLOT SITES FOR $20,200

Purchases Property at Junior, Senior High Schools for Physical Education.

PLANS EXPANDED PROGRAM

Arlin Re-elected President of Board, Eisaman Named Clerk to Succeed Dr. Bristor.

In a move to expand the Mansfield schools' physical education program, the board of education started the new year last night by authorizing the purchase of playground properties at John Simpson Junior high school and Senior high school at a total cost of $20,200.

Purchase of the additional property was approved by the board at its annual organization meeting at which it re-elected Harold W. Arlin as president and employed John H. Eisaman as clerk to succeed the late Dr. John H. Bristor who held the post for 31 years.

The board re-elected Dr. John S Hattery vice president and re-appointed J. B. Moke as superintendent of buildings. Miss Mary Holmes was retained as secretary to the clerk Harold A. Bruce, member of the board has been acting clerk since Dr. Bristor died about two weeks ago.

Keeps Attendance Post.

In addition to his work as clerk, Eisaman will continue as city schools attendance officer, a job he has held since the death of A. H. Wood more than a year ago.

Purchase of the properties for playgrounds and athletic fields is in line with the schools' new physical education program inaugurated last year under the direction of Harry E. Mehock, director of physical education.

On the recommendation of Supt. W. L. Miller, seven lots and 10 half-lots east of the new John Simpson building will be purchased for $10,000 from A. E. Hancock. The board has held a two-year lease on the properties which expires this year.

MURPHY NAMED?

Attorney General to Be New Court Justice, Report.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Frank Murphy will be appointed to the supreme court and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson will succeed him as attorney general, it was learned today on high authority.

This shift in the justice department has been widely predicted ever since the death of Justice Pierce Butler last Nov. 16.

The reports increased yesterday when President Roosevelt conferred with both Murphy and Jackson.

On Capitol Hill today it was reported that the president would send these nominations to the senate tomorrow along with the nomination of Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash to fill a vacancy on the bench of the eastern Federal District court of Washington state.

MAYOR FOR DAY

Steubenville Official Challenged by G. O. P. Loser In Election.

STEUBENVILLE —(INS)— Mayor for a day, James T. Welsh was slated to appear in court today to fight an attempt of Charles S. Baker, his Republican opponent, to have his 177-vote majority set aside. Welsh, a Democrat, took over the mayor's office yesterday.

Baker, in attempting to have the court declare him mayor, claims Welsh's majority represents illegal votes. Judge Clarence Ahl of Bucyrus has been assigned to hear the case.

STUTTGART, Ark. —(AP)— Lee Miller, going duck hunting, tried out an old musket used by his grandfather in the Civil war.

Each time he fired, the battered old muzzle-loader threw out so much smoke he had to stoop to see if he had hit anything.

His bag was ten ducks — the limit.

Calls for Defense Program

President Roosevelt today called upon congress to provide suitable new revenues from taxation to provide for a "common sense" increase in the army and navy. He called for a preparedness program and extension of reciprocal trade agreements in his message to a joint session of the house and senate which convened in a new session today.

CARRIGAN GETS HEALTH POST

Locke's Naming of Democrat to Fill Vacancy on Board Comes as Surprise.

Appointment of James F. Carrigan, former service-safety director to the Mansfield board of health, was announced last night by Mayor William J. Locke. He will succeed Dr. K. E. Buhr whose five-year term expired Dec. 31.

The appointment of Carrigan, a Democrat, came as a surprise and was revealed at a meeting of council when the mayor asked for his confirmation. Council approved the appointment without comment.

Locke said Carrigan was his personal selection for the non-salaried position, and that he had neither asked nor received any recommendations from the Republican executive committee in making the appointment.

Carrigan was named service-safety director in 1934 by former Mayor C. M. Lantz to succeed Herman E. Homberger who resigned to become Mansfield postmaster.

The new health board member is employed at Westinghouse. He was the Democratic candidate for mayor in 1935.

Carrigan's appointment leaves the political complexion of the board unchanged. There are three Democrats and two Republicans. Dr. R. R. Black and Glenn L. Bierly are the Republican members and Atty. J. H. Gongwer and Emil Aderman are Democrats.

BREAK NEARS IN COLD SNAP

Rising Temperatures, Snow Forecast; Mercury Drops to 3 Above Zero.

Rising temperatures and snow are expected to bring relief Thursday from the cold wave which dropped the mercury to three degrees above zero in Mansfield this morning, lowest mark of the season.

The weatherman said the frigid wave which has gripped Ohio for four days will move eastward tomorrow as warmer weather arrives from the western states. Snow is expected to accompany the rise in temperature.

Today was the fourth successive day that the mercury fell close to the zero mark in Mansfield. It was four above Sunday and Monday mornings and seven above yesterday.

At noon today the mercury had climbed to 10 above. Yesterday's

U-BOAT ATTACKS

20 Missing After Torpedo Hits Swedish Steamer.

LONDON —(INS)— Twenty persons were missing today after a German submarine torpedoed and sank the Swedish steamer Svarton, 2,475 tons, off the north coast of Scotland.

Eleven survivors were picked up by a life boat. They said their ship went down a minute and a half after the torpedo struck.

Roosevelt and Farley Join In Paying Tribute to Ashbrook

Messages of sympathy from the highest officials in the nation continued to arrive today at the home of Congressman William A. Ashbrook, Johnstown, who died Monday night on the eve of his departure for Washington. Among them were telegrams from President Roosevelt and Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The congressman from the 17th district, of which Richland county is a part, died at 8 p. m. New Year day, 27 hours after he suffered a stroke.

"I have heard with deep regret," President Roosevelt said in a message to Mrs. Ashbrook and her children, "of the death of your devoted husband. In his passing the country loses an able public official of the highest integrity. Please accept for yourself and for all who mourn with you an assurance of heartfelt sympathy, in which Mrs. Roosevelt joins."

Postmaster General Farley sent a message to the family from New York City.

"I was shocked when I noticed the account of Congressman Ashbrook's death and hasten to extend to you and members of your family my deep and heartfelt sympathy. He was a great personal friend of mine and one for whom I had a very high regard and real affection. He was an exceptionally able and intelligent representative in the house and will be greatly missed by those of us who appreciated his worth."

Other messages came from national and state officials, from former governors.

Vice President John N. Garner and Speaker William Bankhead today named the following Ohio members of congress to attend the funeral of Mr. Ashbrook which will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Friday: Senators Robert A. Taft

Locke Pledges Co-Operation In First Address to Council

Promising to work for the "best interests" of Mansfield, Mayor William J. Locke in his initial address to the new city council last night pledged his co-operation.

"You will find the door of the mayor's office always open and you will always be welcome," he said. "You will find that I shall co-operate with you to the nth degree."

Locke who spoke only briefly indicated he intended to outline to council the administration's program at a later date, after he became better acquainted with operation of the city government.

"The best way I can help right now," he said, "is to continue to listen before offering any suggestions."

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton who will take over his duties on Jan. 8 compared council to the board of directors of a corporation as he pleaded for harmony.

Terming the mayor and himself the executive officers of a huge corporation which must work in close harmony with the directors, Crafton said:

"It makes little difference whether we are Democrats or Republicans, we can work together for the best interests of the city."

The mayor and service director's addresses followed the reorganization of council and the appointment of committees by Council President Howard G. Miller.

Russia, Irked by Repeated Losses, Puts Huge Army on Mannerheim Line.

FINNS CLAIM VICTORIES

Reports Tell How Defenders Scuttled Invaders in War's Biggest Battle.

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI—Irked by setbacks, Soviet Russia was reported today to be massing seven army divisions—about 105,000 men—as the spearhead for a major offensive against the Finnish Mannerheim line on the Karelian isthmus.

Previous estimates of Russia's manpower before the Mannerheim line were upwards of 300,000 men. Authoritative sources have said Finland has 190,000 combat troops opposing the invaders on all fronts.

Fighting in a sub-zero blizzard which checked enemy air attacks, the Finns said Soviet attacks near Lake Lavajarvi on the eastern front yesterday were converted into Finnish victories. A Russian front line base was reported seized.

Meanwhile, reports of how Finnish troops trapped the 168d Red army division Dec. 29 and 30 in the greatest battle of the war, reached the capital for the first time.

Hungry Wolves Chase Fleeing Russians

HELSINKI —(INS)— A story of stark horror came from the frozen, barren wastes of the Petsamo front today where a huge pack of Russian wolves was reported raising havoc with retreating, famished and freezing Soviet troops.

The wolves were said to be following the Russian northern army relentlessly, feasting on the dead and wounded and even attacking Soviet patrols.

'LAST CHANCE'

Jenkins to Be Shown Removal Charges Today.

Thomas C. Jenkins, suspended London prison farm superintendent, was to be given a "last chance" to resign this afternoon before removal charges are filed against him by State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood.

The removal charges, which International News Service dispatches said were of a "sensational nature," were to be shown to Jenkins at a conference in Columbus by Director Sherwood.

If Jenkins continues to refuse to resign, the charges will be filed with the state civil service commission, Sherwood said. The welfare director added that since Jenkins already has been asked to quit, the request will not be repeated.

Jenkins, former head of the Mansfield reformatory, was suspended Dec. 5 after he reported back to work following a three-month leave of absence.

2 MORE SEEK COUNTY OFFICES

Shelby, Mansfield Men Eye Post Of Treasurer and Coroner.

Two more candidates for county offices had taken out nominating petitions today for the May primaries.

Charles Payne, Shelby, chief deputy county treasurer, obtained petitions for the county treasurer's post from the board of elections while Dr. L. B McCullough, Mansfield, was circulating petitions for nomination as coroner.

Payne, a Democrat, has been deputy for several years under Treasurer John E. Kolb who has announced he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Asks 'Common Sense' Army, Navy Increase

Message to Congress Proposes Taxes to Meet Defense Costs; 'Can't Pretend War's None of Our Business' Says President In Submitting Program.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, addressing congress at the outset of a new session, declared today that the United States ultimately can become a leader for world peace but that "we must likewise be prepared to take care of ourselves if the world cannot attain peace."

Accordingly, he said he was asking this year in the light of continuing world uncertainty, for "army and navy increases which are based not on panic but on common sense."

And the president proposed that sufficient additional taxes be levied to meet the cost of emergency spending for defense. He did not specify amounts or methods of taxation.

More than half the message, delivered by Mr. Roosevelt in person to senators and representatives assembled in joint session in the house chamber, was devoted to international affairs and problems. Into it, too, the president injected a strong appeal for national unity.

National unity, he asserted, "is, in a very real and deep sense, the fundamental safeguard of all democracy."

The stress placed on problems created by a world at war, the president said, does not mean the government is abandoning or overlooking the great significance of domestic policies. But for the most part, he touched but briefly on those policies, to examine in a coldly analytical manner the ways in which conflicts across the seas have left an imprint on America and her citizens.

Expresses Peace Hope.

Standing on the house rostrum before a battery of microphones and with a great American flag draped from the paneled wall behind him, Mr. Roosevelt declared as he had in previous addresses that he hoped the United States would not become involved in those wars.

Yet, he asserted, "there is a vast difference between keeping

ROOSEVELT PROGRAM IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Here in brief is the program recommended to congress by President Roosevelt today:

1. Additional taxes to finance "emergency" expenditures for national defense.
2. Extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act "as an indispensable part of the foundation of any stable and durable peace."
3. Increased appropriations for national defense but reductions in "practically all other important items" of the federal budget.
4. Continued search for a solution of the unemployment problem.
5. Development of a spirit of national unity, in congress and out.

Million Americans Affected By Subversives, Dies Reports

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The Dies committee estimated today that not more than 1,000,000 Americans have been seriously affected by subversive activities, which it said were declining rapidly because of the international situation.

"The time may speedily come when they will cease to be seriously regarded by anyone in the United States," the committee said in reporting to the house on its two-year investigation of un-American activities.

In a 15,000-word summary of its hearings, signed by all seven members after a stormy meeting, the committee drew these major conclusions:

1. The overwhelming majority of CIO members, including President John L. Lewis, are not Communists or Communist sympathizers, but the leadership of a quarter of the CIO unions is "more than tinged with Communism."

2. It omitted from a list of "Communist front" organizations the American Youth Congress, which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had upheld.

3. The Soviet-Nazi pact has helped protect constitutional democracy by "making more clear the real nature of all dictatorships" and by revealing the similarity between Hitler's Naziism and Stalin's Communism.

4. Both the German-American bund and the Communist party in the United States are agents of foreign power and should be controlled.

5. The Communist advocacy of changing the United States government violates the 1933 treaty by which the United States recognized Russia.

6. There is a "remote possibility" that Communists, Nazis or Fascists might overthrow the nation's constitutional government, but a "greater chance" exists that opponents of one form of violence may accept another type they find less objectionable.

7. Elimination of subversive activities depends on earnest ef-

Here's Text of Roosevelt's Message Before Congress

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The text of President Roosevelt's annual message to congress follows:

As the congress reassembles, the impact of wars abroad makes it natural to approach "the state of the union" through a discussion of foreign affairs.

But it is important that those who hear and read this message should in no way confuse that approach with any thought that our government is abandoning, or even overlooking, the great significance of its domestic policies.

The social and economic forces which have been mismanaged abroad until they have resulted in revolution, dictatorship and war are the same as those which we here are struggling to adjust peacefully at home.

You are well aware that dictatorships—and the philosophy of force which justifies and accompanies dictatorships—have originated in almost every case in the necessity for drastic action to improve internal conditions where democratic action for one reason or another has failed to respond to modern needs and modern demands

'Far-Sighted Wisdom.'

It was with far-sighted wisdom that the framers of the Constitution brought together in one magnificent phrase three great concepts—"Common defense," "general welfare" and "domestic tranquility."

More than a century and a half later we still believe with them that our best defense is the promotion of our general welfare and Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

NO MATTER whether you're planning a trip south or just looking for something to relieve the monotony of your winter wardrobe, you'll undoubtedly find what you want in the downtown shops these days.

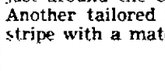
If you're heading south and want a dress that's quite gay and youthful, you'll be delighted with the frocks that Carole King has designed for that very purpose. . . . A dress of magic stripes in blue and white is fashioned of jersey rib crepe with a full pleated skirt, girdled waist and huge pearl buttons down each side of the blouse to give it a double breasted illusion. . . . In fact, stripes seem to be quite the thing for resort wear—a dress of soft Chambray striped in shades of brown is made with a swirling shutter pleated skirt, so manipulated to form a band of solid color at the hipline. . . . Contrasting buttons, concealed pockets and a tiny collar highlight the blouse. . . . A little different combination of stripes is found in another model which combines a bold striped blouse with a ten-gore solid color skirt of accetate jersey . . . pearl buttons, a softly shirred yoke and full push-up sleeves are details of the blouse which is chartreuse and white with a chartreuse skirt.



Marianne

Another stylish feature of the present season is the soft, lissome wool jersey suit, ideal to wear under your furs, to travel in, or don while in Florida. . . . These suits have collarless jackets trimmed with rows of stitching, flaring gored skirts, and can be purchased in sky blue, heaven pink and aqua. . . . They can be worn buttoned up with a scarf at the neck or with one of the gay new multi-colored striped satin blouses.

DOES your office wardrobe need rejuvenating? The new shirt 'n' skirt combinations are ideal for all kinds of tailored business wear. . . . They come in two styles—one with a full over-blouse, plain round neckline, short sleeves and a skirt to match—the other style is made along shirtwaist lines with long sleeves, tailored collar and tuck-in blouse. . . . These ensembles are made of light weight wool flannel in shades of aqua, rose and blue. . . . Separate skirts in light shades for wear just now can be had in rose, blue, beige and chartreuse.

Pastels are also important for dressy afternoon wear—one frock of dusty pink crepe, that I saw while shopping yesterday, was fashioned with an embroidered yoke of pastel wools, and fullness from the hipline pockets formed a graceful flare in the skirt. . . . Pale blue crepe, styled along fitted princess lines with scalloped trim of the same material was another of these early spring pastels.

The navy and white polka dot dress is a sure herald of spring—and since I saw one of these in a local shop yesterday, spring must be just around the corner—in spite of the chilling winds outside. . . . Another tailored frock of navy was brightened by a white hairline stripe with a matching jacket.

BUT WHILE WINTER is still among those present, why don't you do some of the pretty new needlepoints on these cold evenings? You can buy pieces for pictures, chair seats and backs, piano benches, cushions, pocketbooks and billfolds now—these come in floral, scenic and bird designs with the patterns worked in so that all you need do is fill in the background. . . . You can also purchase needlepoint by the yard in floral designs, but with this it's necessary for you to work out the entire design.

A NOTE FOR KIDDIES: Gulliver's Travels soaps are the newest thing out just now, with white and gold figures of the Princess, King Little, Drag Horse, King Bomba and Gabby. . . . And they're all so cute that it should no longer be a task to get Junior or Sister into the tub!

HOLIDAYS MARKED BY NUPTIAL EVENTS

Miss Mary Tawse, Robert L. Schiska Reveal Wedding Date; Mansfield Girl, Kenton Man Married New Year Morning.

WINTER holidays are always marked by a variety of festivities, but one of the most important things of the season is the announcement of engagements and marriages. Last night Mr. and Mrs. William Wright Tawse formally announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Katherine, to Robert L. Schiska, son of Mrs. Anna P. Schiska, 142 North Weldon avenue. Miss Tawse, who makes her home with her parents at 520 Edgewood road, and Mr. Schiska will be married in a quiet ceremony Jan. 20.

New Year day was selected by Miss Mary Elizabeth Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Elliott, Rock road, and Harry C. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Smith, Kenton, for their marriage. The ceremony was performed at the Ontario Community church by Rev. E. H. Thompson at 10:30 a. m.

For her marriage the former Miss Elliott was attired in a wine velvet dress with matching accessories. Miss Ruth Orewiler, cousin of the bride, and Harold Strohminger attended the pair.

After the ceremony dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Elliott was graduated from Springfield Township high school and the Mansfield Commercial Institute. Before her marriage she was employed at the Tappan Stove company. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Kenton high school, and is employed at the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company. After Jan. 15 Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home to friends at their home off the Park avenue west road.

Of interest here is the marriage of Miss Mary Margaret Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hill, Cumberland, Ind., and Paul H. Hardman, son of Mrs. C. B. Gray, 21 Poplar street. The ceremony was performed at 4:30 p. m. Dec. 31 by Rev. O. A. Cook at the Cumberland Baptist church.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was played by Ramon Walker, and Mrs. W. Poulter sang. The bride was attired in her mother's wedding gown of ivory French veiling. She was attended by Mrs. Vance Sappenfield, Linton, Ind., who was attired in her own wedding gown of white satin.

Mr. Sappenfield was best man, and ushers were John, Paul and Robert Hill, brothers of the bride. The bride is a graduate of Franklin college where she was a member of Delta Zeta, Alpha Phi Gamma, and Gold Quill. Mr. Hardman, a former Mansfielder, attended Ohio State university and was graduated from Tri-State college. He was a member of Alpha Kappa Pi.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardman are now spending a few days with Mrs. Gray here in Mansfield, after which they will return to their home in Alexandria, Ind.

De Valera Acts to Crush Rumored Rebellion by IRA

HERE'S TEXT OF ROOSEVELT MESSAGE TO CONGRESS TODAY

President Gives Lawmakers Views on Preparedness, European Struggle, Calls For Increase In Army and Navy.

domestic tranquility.

In previous messages to the Congress I have repeatedly warned that, whether we like it or not, the daily lives of American citizens will, of necessity, feel the shock of events on other continents. This is no longer mere theory for it has been definitely proved by the facts of yesterday and today.

To say that the domestic well-being of one hundred and thirty million Americans is deeply affected by the well-being or the ill-being of the populations of other nations is only to recognize in world affairs the truth we all accept in home affairs.

If in any local unit—a city, county, state or region—low standards of living are permitted to continue, the level of the civilization of the entire nation will be pulled downward.

The identical principle extends to the rest of a civilized world.

But there are those who wishfully insist, in innocence or ignorance or both, that the United States of America as a self-contained unit can live happily and prosperously, its future secure, inside a high wall of isolation while, outside, the rest of civilization and the commerce and culture of mankind are shattered.

I can understand the feelings of those who warn the nation that they would never again consent to the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe. But, as I remember, nobody has asked them to consent—for nobody expects such an undertaking.

The overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens do not abandon in the slightest their hope and expectation that the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war.

I can also understand the wishfulness of those who over-simplify the whole situation by repeating that all we have to do is to mind our own business and keep the nation out of war. But there is a vast difference between keeping out of war and pretending that this war is none of our business.

We do not have to go to war with other nations, but at least we can strive with other nations to encourage the kind of peace that will lighten the troubles of the world, and by so doing help our nation as well.

'Think Things Through.'

I ask that all of us everywhere think things through with the single aim of how best to serve the future of our own nation. I do not mean merely its future relationship with the outside world. I mean its domestic future as well—the work, the security, the prosperity, the happiness, the life of all the boys and girls of the United States, as they are inevitably affected by such world relationships. For it becomes clearer and clearer that the future world will be a shabby and dangerous place to live in—even for Americans to live in—if it is ruled by force in the hands of a few.

Already the crash of swiftly moving events over the earth has made us all think with a longer view. Fortunately, that thinking cannot be controlled by partisanship. The time is long past when any political party or any particular group can curry and capture public favor by labeling itself the "Peace party" or the "Peace bloc." That label belongs to the whole United States and to every right thinking man, woman and child within it.

For out of all the military and diplomatic turmoil, out of all the propaganda and counter-propaganda of the present conflicts, there are two facts which stand out and which the world acknowledges.

The first is that never before has the government of the United States done so much as in our recent past to establish and maintain the policy of the good neighbor with its sister nations.

The second is that in almost every nation in the world today there is a true public belief that the United States has been, and will continue to be, a potent and active factor in seeking the reestablishment of peace.

In these recent years we have had a clean record of peace and goodwill. It is an open book that cannot be twisted or defamed. It is a record that must be continued and enlarged.

So I hope that Americans everywhere will work out for themselves the several alternatives which lie before world civilization, which necessarily includes our own.

Must Look Ahead.

We must look ahead and see the possibilities for our children if the rest of the world comes to be dominated by concentrated force alone—even though today we are a very great and a very powerful nation.

We must look ahead and see the kind of lives our children would have to lead if a large part of the rest of the world were compelled to worship the god imposed by a military ruler, or were forbidden to worship God at all; if the rest of the world were forbidden to read and hear the facts—the daily news of their own and other nations—if they were deprived of the truth which makes men free.

We must look ahead and see the effect on our own future if all the small nations throughout the world have their independence snatched from them or become mere appendages to relatively vast and powerful military systems.

We must look ahead and see the kind of lives our children would have to lead if a large part of the rest of the world were compelled to worship the god imposed by a military ruler, or were forbidden to worship God at all; if the rest of the world were forbidden to read and hear the facts—the daily news of their own and other nations—if they were deprived of the truth which makes men free.

We must look ahead and see the effect of our future generations if world trade is controlled by any nation or group of nations which sets up that control through military force.

It is of course, true that the record of past centuries includes destruction of small nations, enslavement of peoples, and building of empires on the foundation of force. But wholly apart from the greater international morality which we seek today, we recognize the practical fact that with modern weapons and modern conditions, modern man can no longer live a civilized life if we are to go back to the practice of wars and conquests of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Summing up this need of looking ahead, and in words of common sense and good American citizenship, I hope that we will have fewer American ostriches in our midst. It is not good for the ultimate health of ostriches to bury their heads in the sands.

Only an ostrich would look upon these wars through the eyes of cynicism or ridicule.

Of course, the peoples of other nations have the right to choose their own form of government. But we in this nation still believe that such choice should be predicated on certain freedoms which we think are essential everywhere. We know that we ourselves will never be wholly safe at home unless other governments recognize such freedoms.

21 Nations Together.

Twenty-one American republics, expressing the will of two hundred and fifty million people to preserve peace and freedom in this hemisphere are displaying a unanimity of ideals and practical relationships which gives hope that what is being done here can be done on other continents. We in all the Americas are coming to the realization that we can retain our respective nationalities without, at the same time, threatening the national existence of our neighbors.

Such truly friendly relationships, for example, permit us to follow our own domestic policies with reference to our agricultural products, while at the same time we have the privilege of trying to work out mutual assistance arrangements for a world distribution of world agricultural surpluses.

And we have been able to apply the same simple principle to many manufactured products—surpluses of which must be sold in the world export markets if we would continue a high level of production and employment.

For many years after the World war blind economic selfishness in most countries, including our own, resulted in a destructive minefield of trade restrictions which blocked the channels of commerce among nations. This policy was one of the contributing causes of existing wars. It dammed up vast unsaleable surpluses, helping to bring about unemployment and suffering in the United States and everywhere else.

To point the way to break up the log-jam, our trade agreements act was passed—and based upon a policy of equality of treatment among nations and of mutually profitable arrangements of trade.

It is not correct to infer that legislative powers have been transferred from the congress to the executive branch of the government. Everybody recognizes that general tariff legislation is a congressional function but we know also that because of the stupendous complexities in the fashioning and passing of a general law it is advisable to provide, at times of emergency, some flexibility to make the general law adjustable to quickly changing conditions.

'Must Be Kept Alive.'

We are in such a time today. Our present trade agreement method provides a temporary flexibility and is therefore practical in the best sense. It should be kept alive to serve our trade interests, agricultural and industrial, in many valuable ways during the existing wars.

But what is more important, the trade agreements should be extended as an indispensable part of the foundation of any stable and durable peace.

The old conditions of world trade made for no enduring peace; and when the time comes, the United States must use its influence to open up the trade channels of the world in order that no nation need feel compelled in later days to seek by force of arms what it can well gain by peaceful conference. For this purpose we need the trade agreements act even more than when it was passed.

I emphasize the leadership which this nation can take when the time comes for a renewal of world peace. Such an influence will be greatly weakened if this government becomes a dog in the manger of trade selfishness.

The first president of the United States warned us against entangling foreign alliances. The present president of the United States subscribes to and follows that precept.

But trade cooperation with the rest of the world does not violate that precept in any way.

Even as through these trade agreements we prepare to cooperate in a world that wants peace, we must likewise be prepared to take care of ourselves if the world cannot attain peace.

For several years past we have been compelled to strengthen our own national defense. That has created a very large portion of our treasury deficits. This year in the light of continuing world uncertainty, I am asking the congress for army and navy increases which are based not on panic but on common sense. They are not as great as enthusiastic alarmists seek. They are not as small as unrealistic persons claiming superior private information would demand.

As will appear in the annual budget tomorrow, the only important increase in any part of the budget is the estimate for national defense.

Practically all other important items show a reduction. Therefore, in the hope that we can continue in these days of increasing economic prosperity to reduce the federal deficit, I am asking the congress to levy sufficient additional taxes to meet the emergency spending for national defense.

Behind the army and navy, of course, lies our ultimate line of defense—"the general welfare" of our people. We cannot report, despite all the progress we have made in our domestic problems—despite the fact that production is back to 1929 levels—that all our problems are solved. The fact of unemployment of millions of men and women remains a symptom of a number of difficulties in our economic system not yet adjusted.

Labor Surplus Puzzle.

While the number of the unemployed has decreased, while their immediate needs for food and clothing—as far as the federal government is concerned—have been largely met, while their morale has been kept alive by giving them useful public work, we have not yet found a way to employ the surplus of our labor which the efficiency of our industrial processes has created.

We refuse the European solution of using the unemployed to build up excessive armaments which eventually result in dictatorships. We encourage an American way—through an increase of national income which is the only way we can be sure will take up the slack. Much progress has been made; much remains to be done.

We recognize that we must find an answer in terms of work and opportunity.

The unemployment problem today has become very definitely a problem of youth as well as of age. As each year has gone by hundreds of thousands of boys and girls have come of working age. They now form an army of unused youth. They must be an especial concern of democratic government.

We must continue, above all things, to look for a solution of their special problem. For they, looking ahead to life, are entitled to action on our part and not merely to admonitions of optimism or lectures on economic laws.

Some in our midst have sought to instill a feeling of fear and defeatism in the minds of the American people about this problem.

To face the task of finding jobs faster than invention can take them away is not defeatism. To warble easy platitudes that if we will only go back to ways that have failed, everything will be all right—is not courage.

We met a problem of real fear and real defeatism in 1933. We faced the facts—with action, not with words.

Recovery Must Carry on.

The American people will reject the doctrine of fear, confident that in the '30's we have been building soundly a new order of things different from the order of the '20's. In this dawn of the decade of the '40's, with our program of social improvement started, we must continue to carry on the processes of recovery so as to preserve our gains and provide jobs at living wages.

There are, of course, many items of great public interest which could be enumerated in this message, the continued conservation of our natural resources, the improvement of health and of education, the extension of social security to larger groups, the freeing of large areas from restricted transportation discriminations, the extension of the merit system and many others.

Our continued progress in the social and economic field is important not only for the significance of each part of it but for the total effect which our program of domestic betterment has upon the most valuable asset of a nation in dangerous times—its national unity.

The permanent security of America in the present crisis does not lie in armed force alone. What we face is a set of world-wide forces of disintegration—vicious, ruthless, destructive of all the moral, religious and political standards which mankind, after centuries of struggle, has come to cherish most.

In these moral values, in these forces which have made our nation great, we must actively and practically reassert our faith.

These words—"national unity"—must not be allowed to become merely a high sounding phrase, a vague generality, a pious hope, to which everyone can give lip-service. They must be made to have real meaning in terms of the daily thoughts and acts of every man, woman and child in our land during the coming year and the years that lie ahead.

For national unity is, in a very real and deep sense, the fundamental safeguard of all democracy.

Doctrines which set group against group, faith against faith, race against race, class against class, fanning the fires of hatred in men too despondent, too desperate to think for themselves, were used as rabble-rousing slogans on which dictators could ride to power. And once in power they could saddle their tyrannies on while nations, and on their weaker neighbors.

This is the danger to which we in America must begin to be more alert. For the apologists for foreign aggressors, and equally those selfish and partisan groups at home who wrap themselves in a false mantle of Americanism to promote their own economic, financial or political advantage, are now trying European tricks upon us, seeking to muddy the stream of our national thinking, weakening us in the face of danger, by trying to set our own people to fighting among themselves. Such tactics are what have helped to plunge Europe into war. We must combat them, as we would the plague, if American integrity and security are to be preserved. We cannot afford to face the future as a disunited people.

We must as a united people keep ablaze on this continent the flames of human liberty, of reason, of democracy and of fair play as living things to be preserved for the better world that is to come.

Hurt Domestic Field.

Overstatement, bitterness, vituperation, and the beating of drums, have contributed mightily to ill-feeling and wars between nations. If these unnecessary and unpleasant actions are harmful in the international field, they are also hurtful in the domestic scene. Peace among ourselves would seem to have some of the advantage of peace between us and other nations. And in the long run history amply demonstrates that angry controversy surely wins less than calm discussion.

In the spirit, therefore, of a greater unselfishness, recognizing that the world—including the United States of America—passes through perilous times, I am very hopeful that the closing session of the seventy-sixth congress will consider the needs of the nation and of humanity with calmness, tolerance and cooperative wisdom.

May the year 1940 be pointed to our children as another period when democracy justified its existence as the best instrument of government yet devised by mankind."

Democrats Named to Head 7 of Council's 10 New Committees

Democrats will head seven of council's ten committees during the next two years, it was revealed last night with the announcement of committee selections by Council President Howard G. Miller.

A new group, a traffic committee which will study and advise council on problems arising from traffic and parking, was created. Councilman-at-large Philip Smith, Democrat, was named chairman.

Russell D. Porch, First Ward, Republican, was named chairman of the utilities committee, which will be charged with the job of negotiating a new rate contract with the Ohio Fuel Gas company in 1941, a task Porch handled in 1938 when the present three-year contract was signed.

The committee's majority however is Democratic. The other two members are Sixth Ward Councilman Arthur L. Croak, who also was on the committee in the past two years and the Fifth Ward veteran, Fred Miller.

The sewer committee chairmanship went to George C. Kyle, Third Ward legislator. Serving with him will be Jacob Kutchall, "freshman" Fourth Ward councilman, and Smith. They will have the job of handling any rehabilitation in the city's antiquated sewer system, one of the major problems of the immediate future.

The other Republican chairmanship went to C. N. Shultz, veteran Second Ward councilman, who will head the water committee. He will be aided by Harry Emmons, councilman-at-large and Fred Miller.

Of the ten standing committees named by the council president last night, seven chairmanships went to Democrats and three to Republicans, in keeping with the political complexion of the nine-member council in which six are Democrats.

For the first time in several years however, all ten committees are controlled by Democrats.

Heading the all-important finance committee will be Fred Miller. Serving with him will be Shultz and George Berg, councilman-at-large.

Kutschall, the newcomer, was made chairman of the claims committee, and Smith, who returns to council after a two-year absence will head the light and traffic committees.

The committee appointments are:

Finance—Miller (D) chairman, Shultz (R) and Berg (D).

Streets—Berg (D) chairman, Emmons (D) and Shultz (R).

Sewers—Kyle (R) chairman, Kutchall (D) and Smith (D).

Water—Shultz (R) chairman, Miller (D) and Emmons (D).

Light—Smith (D) chairman, Porch (R) and Kutchall (D).

Salaries—Emmons (D) chairman, Kyle (R) and Berg (D).

Parks—Croak (D) chairman, Smith (D) and Kyle (R).

Claims—Kutchall (D) chairman, Porch (R) and Croak (D).

Utilities—Porch (R) chairman, Croak (D) and Miller (D).

Utilities—Porch (R) chairman, Croak (D) and Miller (D).

Traffic—Smith (D) chairman, Croak, (D) and Porch (R).

Elected by secret ballot, George Berg defeated C. N. Schultz for the office of president pro-tem by a vote of 6 to 3, and William J. Beer, jr., was re-elected council clerk for the fifth time.

VILLAGE HEADS TAKE OFFICE

Flory Becomes Mayor of South Boulevards, Bemiller to Head Council.

Officials of the new village of South Boulevards were sworn in last night at a council organization meeting during which R. S. Bemiller was elected council president and Atty. Harold Burns was employed as village solicitor.

Atty. John Kramer, who resigned as solicitor, administered the oath of office to the village officials who were elected last Novemebr.

E. C. Flory became the village's new mayor, succeeding Dr. C. W. Frickman. Flory was one of the two new officials elected in November. A. C. Hunter, councilman, was the other. The other officials re-elected after holding office since the village was incorporated last May.

Other officials are H. B. Scoles, clerk; C. Wilson Barnes, treasurer; J. J. Swisher, marshal; Hunter, Bemiller, Charles S. Swisher, W. S. Valmore, Lester Lown and D. K. Divelbiss, councilmen: L. C. Baumgardner, Harry Rist and W. L. Buck, board of public affairs.

Bemiller, Lown and Divelbiss were named to the council finance committee.

The mayor said council will hold a special meeting Jan. 10 to hear a report of Kenneth Shaffer, Mansfield engineer, who is conducting a sewer survey in the village preparatory to the construction of a sanitary sewer system.

Council will meet regularly once a month, Mayor Flory said, with the next meeting scheduled for his home.

EUROPEAN PEACE 'STILL POSSIBLE'

Premier Says Holland Ready to Help Make Use of Opportunity.

THE HAGUE —(INS)— The opportunity for peace in Europe "is not entirely gone," Premier Jan De Geer of Holland declared in a broadcast today.

Reiterating the readiness of the Netherlands to lend spiritual and material aid to restoration of peace, De Geer said:

"Millions of persons in this and other countries are ardently hoping that the time will come for better understanding. Others are fighting to achieve a 'better future,' and hope this will come from victories in war.

"But this totally wrong war was a self-born evil, and therefore no good can come from it.

Boy, 11 Wraps Her In Blankets When Clothes Catch on Fire.

TOLEDO, O. —(INS)— The presence of mind of 11-year-old Ellis Fountain was credited today with saving the life of Mary Jane Winter, 8, when the girl's clothing caught fire as she poked at coals in a stove. The boy wrapped Mary Jane in bed clothing and smothered the burning clothes.

URGE TELEGRAPH FIRMS' MERGER

Communications Commission Recommend Consolidation of Western Union, Postal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The federal communications commission recommended today that congress authorize the consolidation of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

In a report filed by FCC Chairman James L. Fly with the senate interstate commerce committee, the commission said that consolidation of the existing companies "into one or more unified systems is an obvious remedy for unsound management policies and destructive competition."

"The present situation," the commission said, "is fraught with possibilities of substantial losses in employment unless something is done to alleviate existing conditions."

The proposed consolidation also would more effectively provide for communication needs incident of national defense, it said.

The commission recommended that legislation be enacted removing existing prohibitions against such a consolidation, but did not suggest specific legislation. It recommended that the scope of consolidation be left to the discretion of the FCC.

"The financial situation of the Postal system is precarious and that of Western Union, although less critical, is definitely unfavorable," the commission said.

HEADS BOARD

Harlan Taylor was elected president of the Springfield Township board of education for 1940 at a re-organization meeting last night at the Springfield township school in Ontario.

W. A. Turner was elected vice president and L. D. Baker was re-elected clerk. One new member, Ray Downs, was received on the board. Downs was elected last fall to replace L. R. Snyder.

Other members of the board are Mat Mulligan and Mrs. Louise Walker.

ASKS POWERS TO COPE WITH ANY THREATS

Expect Approval of Bill Will Signal Start of Nation-Wide Man Hunt by Police.

(By Associated Press)

DUBLIN—Aroused by repeated rumors that the undercover Irish Republican army was planning open rebellion, the Irish (Eire) government asked parliament to approve today sweeping authority to meet any threat.

The weapon forged by Eamon De Valera, prime minister of independent Eire, is a 25-line emergency powers act by which the government could intern any person "whose liberty may be a menace to public safety."

Political observers expressed belief that the Dail Eireann, Ireland's parliament, would make the bill law by tonight and that its passage would be the signal for a nationwide manhunt by the Irish army and police for members of the IRA.

Internment camps would be established for suspects detained.

The Dail meeting, closely guarded by units of the Irish army, was closed to all but a few members of the public. As a safeguard against an expected demonstration by IRA sympathizers during the debate, troops were detailed to ring the parliament building.

Rumors that plans for open rebellion were afoot have mentioned the Easter Sunday anniversary of the abortive 1916 rebellion as the possible day for an attempted coup.

Seeks to Unite Counties.

The Irish Republican army, descended from the Irish Volunteers of 1916, aims at union of the 26 southern counties—Eire—and the six northern counties, northern Ireland or Ulster, which are part of the United Kingdom.

This aim is shared by De Valera, but he wants it done peaceably, by agreement with Great Britain.

The governments of Ireland, northern Ireland and Britain have outlawed the organization but its secret enrollment is estimated at from 10,000 to 50,000 men and it has the passive sympathy of a substantial portion of Ireland.

Press for Special Session to Raise Ohio Pensions

REPUBLICANS ASK BRICKER TO TAKE STEP

Point to 'Political Danger' in Not Making State Laws Conform With U. S.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A number of Republican legislators nervously watching the approach of another campaign were reported today to have "politely suggested" to Governor Bricker that he call a special session of the legislature to liberalize old age pension laws.

Administration spokesmen admitted that while most letters received at the executive office from legislators, particularly rural members, expressed a distaste for further direct relief expenditures, a growing number have pointed to the political danger of not making state pension laws conform with more generous federal statutes.

The last congress provided that the federal government would pay one-half of pension costs up to $40 monthly instead of one-half a maximum of $30 monthly. Ohio has not taken advantage of the liberalization and the maximum is still $30 in this state.

Before the congressional action the Ohio house voted to bind the state to match whatever increase congress authorized. The state senate struck out this provision in pension legislation and the legislators are now in the position of having to answer to old age pensioners unless the law is changed.

Session Possible.

Although the governor has not committed himself, there was a general feeling that a special session might well be expected during February or March. Conceivably the political implications have not been lost on Bricker as he too faces another campaign.

The chances for such a session were believed to have been enhanced by a statement from the finance office that the state would have a $2,500,000 surplus for 1939 after meeting all current obligations, plus about $3,000,000 in retirement of the school debt.

Although no exact figure is available on the cost of raising the maximum pension award from $30 to $40 monthly, State Pension Director Tom McCaw esctimated it at $5,000,000 for both the state and federal governments. The surplus would fit the state's needs nicely.

Rulings Lead to New Demands For Labor Act Changes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Renewed congressional demands for changes in the Wagner act were made today after the supreme court upheld board powers of the labor board to direct the conduct of collective bargaining elections.

Rep. Routzohn (R-Ohio) a member of the house committee investigating the labor board, said that the three unanimous decisions announced yesterday "helped clarify the situation."

"The decisions," he said, "make it obvious that if any remedy is needed, that remedy must come through a change in law."

Various critics of the administration of the Wagner act have found fault with the board and have contended that the act itself was not being carried out as intended by congress. The house committee is expected to recommend changes when it winds up its investigation, and other proposed amendments may be offered by the house labor committee.

The court decisions gave authority to the board to control employe elections for determining bargaining representation without interference from federal circuit courts.

Strangles Mother Then Leaps From Hotel

Up and Down THE STREET

Not many persons were aware of it, but last Thursday night the Ridge home in Lucas housed a lot of Grade A musical talent. Kirk Ridge, professor of piano at Syracuse university, was home for the holidays, and he had as his guests Severin Eisenberger, formerly of Austria but now of Cleveland and one of the leading concert pianists of the day; and Richmond Gayle, piano instructor at Dakota Wesleyan university, Mitchell, So. Dakota. Young Gayle was a student of Ridge's at Syracuse and graduated only two years ago with exceptional honors. Eisenberger, who appears frequently with the Cleveland Symphony, drove down for the evening, but Gayle spent several days here as the house guest of Kirk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ridge.

After wishing for snow and cold weather for the annual Boy Scout winter camp, now in session at Camp Avery Hand, Mansfield scouts are now getting more cold weather than they hoped for, judging from the camp attendance. According to Scout Executive Floyd Dent, only seven out of the 22 boys who had registered were at camp yesterday.

Remember Sam Schweitzer who conducted the Mansfield Art school here several years ago? The arrival of a new baby at the Schweitzer home in Shaker Heights inspired Sam to create something new in the way of an announcement. Pierced with a real, white feather, the inscription on the announcement reads: "From the stork—One new baby boy—Red hair—6 pounds, 9 ounces—at the Schweitzers 12-27-39—11:40 a. m." The printing is in black ink, except the color of the baby's hair, which is printed in bright red ink.

That prediction of City Parks Superintendent Frank Burton that "it will have to get mighty cold to freeze ice in the Central park fountain" made Burton look like a pretty good prophet today. Despite four days of near-zero weather, there was only a thin layer of ice in the center of the fountain and the goldfish were as active as they were in July. Water is kept moving through the fountain, preventing the formation of thick ice.

GET GOOD START

3 Council Committees Given Petitions by President.

Three of council's committees got off to a good start last night, receiving petitions referred by President Howard G. Miller.

The Street committee, headed by George Berg was handed two requests, one for the paving of Rhein street from Sturges avenue to Wood street, and the other a request from the Humphryes Manufacturing company for a parking ban on both sides of Newman street from East Fifth street to Touby's run.

The light committee received a petition for a street light at the end of Marshall avenue and the claims committee was presented with a claim for $79.07, submitted by H. M. Boyajohn, Columbus contractor, for damage to his property when a water line was broken at 263 Bowman street a month ago by workmen building a new bridge over Touby's run.

ACCIDENTS PUT 2 IN HOSPITAL

Pedestrian Struck, Autoist Hurt in Head-on Crash Near Ashland.

James Smith, 58, of Hayesville, is one of two men in Ashland Samaritan hospital as the result of traffic accidents last night in the Ashland vicinity.

Smith suffered facial and body injuries when struck by a car driven by Russell Thomas of Hayesville, at 7 p. m., while walking along the Honey Creek road, one mile south of Hayesville, Ashland County Sheriff Dale Hammond reported.

T. H. Sutliff of Cleveland also is in the Ashland hospital with head injuries, a broken right knee and minor body injuries, received when his car collided head-on with a truck driven by Ralph Elkins of Ashland, west of here on route 42.

Injured in Mansfield accidents were Chauncy Jacobs, 28, of 23 Beymiller street and Evan Waltz 439 Marion avenue. Jacobs received head lacerations when the auto he was driving skidded and hit a utility pole at Orange and Wayne street, yesterday. Waltz suffered minor injuries Monday night when he was struck by a car driven by J. E. McFadden, 37 Augustine avenue as he walked along U. S. route 42 near the Armory, police said.

In an accident Monday, Sterling Baker, 151 Gibson avenue, escaped serious injury when his machine struck a stray horse on Millsborough road just west of the city. Baker lost control of the car and it plunged into a ditch and caught fire. He extinguished the blaze with snow. The horse, owned by J. Carl Oberlin, was cut about the legs.

CONVICT WHO TOOK DONAHEY AT HIS WORD, GOES HOME FOR GOOD

(By United Press)

LONDON, O.—Fifteen years ago—so the story goes—Clarence Moore, an ingratiating colored convict of the state penitentiary, was a trusty and house man at the executive mansion for former Governor A. Vic Donahey.

Clarence claims that one day the governor told him:

"Clarence, you go on back home."

Evidently Donahey, now Senator Donahey, meant the penitentiary, but Clarence took him at his word and headed for Louisville, Ky. He married and established a little restaurant which he maintained until the state caught up with him and brought him back to the London prison farm after 11 years.

Although Donahey considered that Clarence had "walked away" he supported his pleas for freedom. Last October, Governor Bricker commuted Clarence's life sentence for second degree murder so he could be paroled. In due time the parole came through.

All smiles, Clarence yesterday doffed his prison garb and dressed in neat clothes of a free man, told the London prison staff goodbye and headed for Louisville where he expects to buy a home with modest savings and a World war bonus.

He was sent to prison for shooting another colored man in 1922 in a fight over a woman.

ILLNESS FATAL

Miss Robison, 22, Perrysville Native, Succumbs Here.

Miss Mildred Robison, 22, of Perrysville, died here early today at the home of Mrs. Caroline Schlupp, Fifth avenue, of pneumonia.

Born Sept. 22, 1917 in Richland county, Miss Robison was employed at Westinghouse for the past three years, making her home with Mrs. Schlupp. She was graduated from Perrysville high school in 1935.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robison, north of Perrysville; a brother, William, a sister, Alice, both at home and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Feightner of near Perrysville.

The body has been removed to the Byerly funeral home in Lucas where it will remain until Thursday afternoon when it will be taken to the family residence. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. DAUGHTER FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO TAKE OWN LIFE

Assistant Librarian Confesses She Twisted Scarf Until Parent Fell Dead.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH—A young woman assistant librarian at the University of West Virginia strangled to death her mother, also connected with the university, then tried to take her own life today by leaping out of the sixth story window of a hotel.

Questioned by police at a hospital, Miss Agnes West, 34, student assistant librarian at the University of West Virginia, told officers she strangled her mother, Mrs. Helen G. West, 58, of Morgantown, W. Va., because of a "dispute" that arose over a "difference of opinion." Mrs. West was secretary of student health service at the University of West Virginia.

More than eight hours after she strangled her mother with a scarf, Miss West leaped out of the window of her room on the sixth floor, but struck a false tin roof in an alleyway.

When asked by officers why she had killed her mother, Miss West replied: "We had a dispute for some time." She said they had been to Toledo, O., on personal business.

"A difference of opinion," was Miss West's reply to the question as to why she took her mother's life.

After further questioning, Miss West said she was selfish and unstable and did not want her mother to go through life alone, so she decided to kill her mother before taking her own life.

"There wasn't much of a struggle," she said. "I made a good job of it but not of myself."

"Then you had the urge to twist the scarf," she was asked.

"Yes," Miss West replied. She told how she offered to adjust the scarf for Mrs. West as they prepared to leave the hotel last night. Drawing the scarf tightly around her mother's neck, she tied it into three knots when the elder woman fell to the floor.

STRICKEN AT 60

Mrs. Elizabeth Herold Dies After 9-Month Illness.

Mrs. Elizabeth Herold, 60, wife of Conrad Herold, died Tuesday at the home, 281 East Second street. She had been ill for nine months.

Mrs. Herold was born in Austria-Hungary, Sept. 16, 1879, and came to the United States 43 years ago. She resided in North Dakota until 22 years ago when she moved to Mansfield.

Survivors are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Mary David of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mrs. Joseph Shibinski of Mansfield; four sons, Peter, Joseph and John of Mansfield, and Frank, of Beloit, Wis.; 15 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and a sister in Europe.

The body will be at the home until the time of services which will be conducted at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 a. m. Friday by Msgr. R. C. Goebel. Burial will be in Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

FUNERAL HELD

J. H. Stamberger, Who Died in Greenwich, Buried In Cleveland.

GREENWICH—Funeral services were held today in East Cleveland for James H. Stamberger, 79, former fire and police chief there, who died here Monday at the home of Mrs. Lura Lutz. Burial will be in East Cleveland.

Mr. Stamberger was East Cleveland's first police officer and later became fire and police chief. He left office in 1917, and had lived in Greenwich for the past two years. He is survived by two sons, a daughter, three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, all of Cleveland.

FAIR ENOUGH!

How George Spelvin Felt 3 Days After Elaborate Greeting for New Year

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—This body ain't alive. Hands cold. No sensation in feet. In fact, probably no feet at all. Can't say for sure if there is any feet. If there's feet and the body is alive why don't the toes wiggle when you wiggle them?

Eyes shut tight. If it's alive why don't it face the world this glorious New Year morn? New Year morn. That's a hot one. How do you know it's the morn? How do you know it ain't four-five in the afternoon? The eyes won't even open to see if it's daylight. Maybe it's a thousand years from now.

What's this they stuff in your mouth when you are dead? Feels like a pile of brush. Dry and with bristles all over it. That's all they care, once you kick off. Stuff a hunk of doormat in your mouth and leave it lay.

Maybe if you would hold a mirror over its mouth it would make mist? Who? Who maybe hold a mirror over what's mouth. This body can't hold any mirror over its own mouth. This body ain't alive. Not a twitch in it. Those toes certainly seem a long way off. Way, way down there. Hiya, toes? You still there? Brain, phone the toes, see if they're still there. No answer. Okay. Cancel the call.

Well, Spelvin, here you are again. George Spelvin positively is going to sit home and read a book until midnight, then drink positively just one toast, then smash the glass and start the new year right. George Spelvin answers phone and says no thanks, he positively can't join them this New Year eve. What a liar that Spelvin was. Not so much a liar as just no character. No will power. So there he is at midnight, screeching like a tomcat and doin' feats of strength. Telling those dumb stories over for the thousandth time.

Thousandth time. Thouthandth thime. Thame thory thouthandth thime, Thpelvin. And his patient, unfortunate old lady saying, "Dear, why don't you stash every other one behind the clock? You sure feel all right?"

Spelvin, I suppose you realize you never made home last night? Or anyway that night. You know. New Year eve, 1940? Your last night, anyway. Think back. You never made home. Remember you drove down but there is nothing in the record about any trip home. You must have folded yourself away on those people in their house.

This must be a guest room. If the body had any life in it you could open one eye and take a squint—see. But this certainly ain't your own bed, Spelvin.

But this time. That was the time you didn't come to. So they gave you the standard No. 5 funeral, complete with six hacks and a portable stained glass window in the parlor, price $600 and positively no extras, and much too good for a bum like you and now she is married again to a very nice, sober fellow in Sioux City.

Feel how cold the hands are. Nothing that cold can be alive. Maybe if they would shut the window if there was any life in the old body you could warm up and sort out sentiment and see where you are and what happened.

I think one eyelid just fluttered, Spelvin. That pain like an ice pick in your eye was the glorious light of the glad New Year. Yes, here you are again, Mr. Spelvin, and a happy New Year to you. And now hoist that big stupid lump of meat out of there and get going, you dope.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Some learned medical man (if he had time for such tomfoolery) should be able to write us an interesting tome about the effects of health on the success of movie stars.

We've heard the one about Frances Langford, who had her tonsils yanked—and turned up some time later with a deeper voice that lent itself to blues and swing, thus paving her path to vocal fame.

Now comes Margaret Sullavan, with a tale about laryngitis and its wonders. A sore throat has never been a woe I'd seek, but Maggie, now, she's different. She was going to read a script for the Shuberts and she had a cold. It was too much a good thing for a beginninor to skip, so she read.

"That's an Ethel Barrymore voice," she was told. "Miss Sullavan, you're engaged!"

But . . . before the play opened Maggie lost her cold. Maybe because beginners in the theater haven't good sense, Maggie decided she needed a cold again.

I quote Maggie's press agent here, a gentleman who crossed his heart and hoped to die if he were a gay deceiver: "So the girl deliberately went out into fog and rain and succeeded in having laryngitis again—and her voice has remained the same ever since."

Still groggy from this one, I encountered a bright young medical chap (who is doing things far more important than studying the movies for tome-writing purposes) who seemed to devine my subconscious confusion. Unprompted, he launched upon a casual dissertation, over dinner, on that very theme—medicine and the movies.

"I wonder," he began, "how far Eddie Cantor would have gone had he not been an exolphthalmus."

"Huh?" I blinked.

"And Joe E. Brown," he continued unflinchingly. "But for his macrostomia, I wonder . . . The same, of course, would apply to Martha Raye."

I gasped, kept discreetly silent.

"Robert Donat," said the medical man, "is a superb actor. I know, from a friend of mine, that he suffers from asthma, or at one time did suffer. It is a nice subject for speculation—whether his effective dyspnea when making screen love is due to simulated emotion or merely to asthma. . . ."

About this time my friend was called out to determine whether a sick child had mumps or merely a sore throat. There was a doctor handy. I learned, with rather a let-down feeling because the medical terms sounded so grandly exciting, that he had been referring merely to Cantor's pop-eyes, to the big mouths of Brown and Miss Raye. Dyspnea (in case you, too, wondered) is merely panting or shortness of breath.

Until he returned I ruminated upon the happy stroke of fortune—a millionaire's worth—that caused an abnormal growth on the vocal cords of one Harry Lillis Crosby, who without it might have been just like anybody else, but with its aid has developed into Bing the foremost buh-buh-buh-boy of the airways and screen.

My friend came back. It wasn't mumps.

MAN, 88, FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Body of Thomas Miller Discovered By Neighbors In Shiloh.

SHILOH—Thomas Miller, 88, was found dead in the kitchen of his home here Tuesday by neighbors who became alarmed when they failed to see him for several days and forced open the door of the house in which he lived alone.

Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler said Mr. Miller had suffered a heart attack and apparently died about 2 a. m. Sunday. He had been last seen by a newsboy Saturday evening.

He was born in Bloominggrove township Oct. 3, 1851. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Swinefurd of Olivesburg and Mrs. Amanda Plotts of Shiloh, and a brother, William Miller of Shiloh.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at the McQuate funeral home by Rev. H. T. Wintermute, pastor of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Connie Mack Sees Trouble for Yanks.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Connie Mack, who can look back upon 77 eventful years, peered into 1940 today and decided he was not picking the New York Yankees "to win again this season." "New York has a good club, but so has Boston, Cleveland and Detroit, and with any kind of breaks they'll give the Yankees plenty of trouble," the venerable veteran of the Philadelphia Athletics opined.

Tygers Open New Rivalry With Toledo Libbey

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL

THE victory scored by the City league all-stars over the "unbeatable" New York Celtics created some doubt in the minds of skeptical fans. . . . The Celtics are accused of throwing the game as a build-up for a return engagement. . . . Fortunately, this is not the case. . . . League officials have no intentions of bringing the Celtics back to Mansfield, and, so, charges that the game was thrown for this purpose have no foundation. . . . Too bad Nick Weber didn't get a chance to appear in the Rose Bowl game. . . . A New York wag suggests that if the no-trading rule fails to curb the Yankees, the American league might adopt an "over-the-fence-is-out" law. . . . Mal Stevens, New York U. coach, and Elmer Layden of Notre Dame concur in the opinion that undefeated football teams generally are the products of weak schedules. . . . The member of a neighboring city high school cage team warms the bench so much he calls himself "The Chief Justice" . . . Scheduled to play in Toledo Sunday, the N. Y. Celtics refused to take the floor when cold weather kept the attendance down. . . . Is basketball big business in Indiana? . . . Well, in the underpaid ranks of Ohio, it is an exception when a high school mentor gets $3,000 for the whole school year; in the Hoosier state at little Lafayette alone, a prep coach receives $4,300 and has an assistant who's paid $3,600.

Then there's the case of that coach in the northwest who won 17 out of 19 games yet lost his job, because—he didn't play the son of a board member.

Jeffries Once Tried Meeting Two Foes.

FIGHTING double-headers was nothing unusual for old-time boxers. . . . Jim Jeffries, coming up to the heavyweight title, once attempted the double trick, but with disastrous results . . . He agreed to whip Bob Armstrong, a colored fellow, and Jack O'Donnell in 10 rounds each. . . . Armstrong, his first foe, stayed the limit and Jeffries, in disgust, refused to go through against O'Donnell. . . . Claimed he hurt his hand against Armstrong . . . Resume League Games

Sports to Tackle Undefeated Shelley Quintet in Main Tussle Thursday.

THEIR representatives having beaten the famous New York Celtics, the city league cage court performers felt rather pert today as they prepared to resume their schedule with two games at Mansfield high school Thursday night.

The All-Star team increased the prestige of the league by turning back the Celtics, 42 to 39, in a spectacular game last week.

Thursday night's games will pit the Blue Goose Sohioans against the Westinghouse Electrics in the first game at 7:30 p. m., and Shelley's Chocolates, the league leader, against the Yuncker Sports.

* * *

This week's games will close the first round of play. Three of the four teams have a chance to win the title.

If the Sports should trim the Chocolates, they will gain a share of the title. Such a result would also offer the Blue Goose team a chance to obtain a share.

Of course, if Shelley's Chocolates win Thursday, the first round title will go to them.

Shelley's team is expected to find the Sports troublesome Thursday, although it is not likely that Johnny Rees will be in the Yuncker lineup. Rees is ill.

* * *

The Blue Goose club is also expected to encounter considerable trouble with Westinghouse, which is due to make its presence in the league felt.

Wildcats Lose To New Haven

Ray Kipp Scores 20 Points In 37-22 Victory.

NEW HAVEN — New Haven high's Twin-Valley league basketeers registered a 37 to 22 victory over New London high in a non-league tussle here last night. It was New Haven's seventh win in nine starts.

Led by Raymond Kipp, who annexed high-point honors with 20 points, New Haven, after being held to a 4-4 tie in the opening frame gained a 16-9 margin at the half and never trailed. The winners led, 29 to 20 at the end of the third chapter.

* * *

In the preliminary contest, the New Haven seconds defeated the New London reserves, 30 to 13.

Inmates Downed By Akron Quint

Despite Price's 13-point scoring effort, the Ohio State Reformatory quintet dropped a thrill-packed 38 to 37 decision to the Akron Spotless Spots in a contest at the Reformatory yesterday.

The Inmates' inability to halt the scoring exhibition of Zuravel, Akron center, led to their downfall. The visitor collected 20 points to set the individual pace.

Akron after being held to a 12-12 tie in the first period, moved ahead 26 to 22 at the half, and was leading 32 to 29 at the end of the third period.

They're Undefeated In 17 Conference Games

Undefeated in 17 Ohio Conference games for the 1938-39 basketball season, Coach Mose Hole of the Wooster cagers has indicated that he will put his dependence this season on the eight Scots, pictured here. Seated in front of Coach Hole are Bob Cope, sophomore forward, and Co-captain John Mack, guard. Kneeling are Frank Grenert, center, Co-captain Cliff Smith, guard, and Dick Gernert, forward. Standing are Bill Simmonds, guard, Pudge Hole, son of Coach Hole, forward, and Karl Kate, sophomore guard. Co-captains Mack and Smith are seniors, Hole, Grenert and Gernert are juniors. All five are lettermen.

BOWLING SCORES

Hollingsworth, Haire Roll 600's to Set Pace In Transportation League.

COMPILING a 611 total, Bob Hollingsworth of the Williams Transfer quintet, Transportation league, set the scoring pace at the Meder alleys last night.

Kenny Haire of the C. C. C. Highway club accounted for the only other 600 when he passed the coveted figure by only one pin.

Hitting 500 right on the nose, Mrs. Sophia Meder led the women's scoring in the Mixed Doubles league. Mary McMullen missed the figure by only two pins. Fritz Vogel led the men with 589.

Hedges Quint In Semi-Final

Six Teams Battle for Other Three Places at Y.

With Hedges all ready in the semi-final bracket, six other quintets tangle today to gain a post in the semi-final round of the Y. M. C. A. Grade School tournament in progress on the Y court this week.

Hedges gained its post by turning back Western, 6 to 4, yesterday in one of the opening games. In the other contests played yesterday, Bowman topped Carpenter, 13 to 9, and Brinkerhoff halted West Fifth, 17 to 11, to advance to the quarter-finals.

In today's games, which get under way at 2 p. m. Woodland faces Prospect, Newman tackles Bushnell and Bowman plays Brinkerhoff.

* * *

The semi-finals will be held on Thursday, with the consolation finals and championship contest set for Friday. The finals will be played at 2:45 p. m. Friday.

WIN HOCKEY TILTS

CLEVELAND — (INS) — John Carroll university appeared today to have lost none of its championship form after an impressive 3-0 victory over Carnegie Tech in an Ohio-Pennsylvania college hockey league engagement. Duquesne won its fourth straight victory by outclassing Western Reserve, 5 to 1.

Boosts Season Total

Ohio University Quintet Rolls Up 78 to 23 Victory Over Buffalo Cagers.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The jungle threat of the Ohio U. Bobcats in the hardwoods roared louder today after the Cats rolled up a 78 to 23 victory over the University of Buffalo in their first game off the home court.

Frankie Baumholtz potted 21 points to boost his season total to 75 as the Bobcats chalked up win No. 4. The scoring splurge last night hoisted the Bobcat average to 62 points for four triumphs without a loss.

Vern Deinzer and Jim Snyder, two other junior teammates of Baumholtz, picked off 14 points apiece in the runaway start of a five night swing through the east. Ohio led 42 to 10 at halftime. The Bobcats run into more highly-touted opposition tonight at the University of Scranton.

Ohio State's uncertain cagers engage in the final "tuneup" before the Big Ten season tonight when they entertain a touring California quint at Columbus. Stock of the twice-beaten Bucks to repulse California rose when Marshall college upset the invaders, 51 to 47, at Huntington, W. Va., last night.

Roger Tricot had 12 points and Julius Rivlin and Jim McCloud add 10 each to pace the Marshall attack in an overtime contest. The score was knotted 10 times. Bill Ogilvie, a six-foot, six-inch center, garnered 16 points for California.

In two other Ohio games last night, Xavier was nosed out by western Kentucky, 40 to 39, while Penn State smothered Akron, 55 to 20. It was the second win in two nights over a Buckeye five for Penn State which beat Mt. Union on Monday and plays Kent State tonight.

The loss was the fifth of the season against two triumphs for Akron. Xavier had lost six contests while winning three.

* * *

Case, Victor in its two games to date, resumes action tonight at Mt. Union in an Ohio conference tilt. Both of the Case wins were over league opponents while the Mounts make their conference debut tonight.

Dayton, beaten five times, seeks its second victory against Miami's once-beaten Redskins who boast the state's best defense.

Tackle Second Division Foes

The three teams tied for the leadership in the Senior A league at the Friendly House will meet second division foes in Thursday's games.

* * *

The Rex Billiards, defending champions, meet the Isaly Dairys in the first game at 6:45 p. m. The Cuemen's only defeat was administered by the Augustine Canfields.

The Augustine quintet tackles the victoryless Daley Cafes in the middle game, and the Raemelton Farm, victorious over the Canfields last week, engage the Moose Lodge, which holds down fourth place.

The First Congregational cagers smothered First Lutheran, 27 to 13, yesterday on the Y court to chalk up their fourth straight win and retain their half-game lead in the Y. M. C. A. Church Class B league title chase.

While the leaders were winning, the First Presbyterian club, defending champions, and the South Main Evangelical outfit still retained a share of the runner-up berth. First Presbyterian beat the Park Avenue Baptist club, 34 to 12, and South Main walloped First Methodist, 14 to 4.

The Catholic Foresters handed the Mayflower quintet is fourth defeat by a 22 to 18 count in the other game.

Paced by Shelley, who dumped in 18 points, the Congregational five gained the lead in the opening period and never lost it. The winners were leading 7-4 in the opening quarter, 9-4 at the intermission and 15-7 at the start of the fourth period.

South Main and First Presbyterian both secured leads in the initial periods of their respective battles.

TAKES ON GHOULY

ST LOUIS (NS) Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong, one of boxing's busiest men, takes on Joe Ghouly of St. Louis here tonight in a 15-round bout billed as a title match

INFIELDERS SIGN

CLEVELAND (AP) Shortstop Lou Broudreau and Second Baseman Ray Mack of the Cleveland Indians have signed contracts for next season.

Battle Friday Night

This Week's Game Last on Home Schedule Until Jan. 19; Team Improved.

A NEW rivalry on a Mansfield high school athletic schedule will be opened at the Tyger lair Friday night when Toledo Libbey sends its cage forces to the city.

The game will also mark the first appearance of the Tygers on the home court in more than two weeks.

Not since Dec. 16 when the Tygers walloped Elyria, 61 to 17, have they performed at home. After Friday's game, the Tygers will not play another home tilt until Jan. 19 when the undefeated New Philadelphia quintet invades.

Little is known about the Libbey quintet, but reports from Toledo indicate that the Cowboys pack a wallop.

Coach Vern Hoffman was pleased with the way the Tygers showed up in the Sandusky game. Trailing at the end of the first period, Mansfield spurted to obtain a lead in the second frame that was never threatened.

The two guards, Don Rose and Bill Herpich, continue to hold up well on the defense, and Gene Miller should be a valuable man if he can keep up his scoring gait.

* * *

Jack Shiplet indicated in the Sandusky game last week that he also can hit the basket. Hoffman believes the sophomore will be ready to take over Gene Rudolph's place when the latter graduates this month.

The Tygers now have won four games and lost two.

High School Cagers Return to Action.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— With the holiday lull out of the way, Ohio's scholastic basketeers got down to business today, each with an eye trained on the championship tournament scheduled March 14, 15 and 16 at the State Fairgrounds coliseum.

Last week's spasmodic firing knocked eight top-flight teams out of the undefeated class, but at least 30 others roared along unblemished. Practically all the squads see action this week.

The No. 1 event of the holidays was the comeback of Akron North's class A championship club. The Vikings, after losing two of their first five, went barnstorming to beat Portsmouth's powerful Trojans by 27-19, and Chillicothe's Red Devils by 45-22.

North Canton's class B Kings were idle, retaining their six-victory, no-loss status.

Punched out of the unbeaten corps were: East Liverpool (22, Beaver Falls, Pa., 31); Akron South (31, Canton McKinley 40); Defiance (29, Amanda 39); Dover (22, New Philadelphia 27); Dennison (34, Erie, Pa., East, 37; Hamilton Catholic (40, Dayton Fairview 51); Martins Ferry (31, Newark 35); and Bridgeport (32, Steubenville 42.)

* * *

Unbeaten quintets, with the number of wins, include: Middle Point (Van Wert county) 9; Celina Immaculate Conception, and Wharton (Wyandot) 8; West Carrollton (Montgomery), and Pickaway township (Pickaway) 7; Marietta, Amanda (Fairfield), North Canton (Stark), Middletown, Ottoville (Putnam), Columbiana (Columbiana), South Amherst (Lorain), Beach City, (Stark), and Ohio School for the Deaf (Columbus) 6; New Philadelphia, Cleveland Collinwood, Mount Vernon, Struthers and Columbus St. Marys, 5; Canton McKinley, Canton St. John, McConnellsville (Morgan), Sciotoville (Scioto), Smithfield (Jefferson), and Columbus St. Charles, 4; Canton Timken, Willard and Grandview, 3; East Palestine, Portsmouth Central Catholic and Steubenville, 2.

McLemore Did Pick Tech, Clemson, You Know

By HENRY McLEMORE

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Recollections of it are rather dim because it happened way back last year (last Sunday, in fact), but I do seem to recall having picked Tennessee over Southern California, Tulane over Texas A and M., Georgia Tech over Missouri, and Clemson over Boston college in the various bowl games.

I think it is with pardonable pride that I call your attention to those last two picks. Is there one among you who will dare deny that Georgia Tech beat Missouri and that Clemson was the victor over Boston college? One hundred per cent right I was about those two games. If, perhaps, I erred slightly in choosing Tennessee and Tulane let me remind you that to err is only human, and I am always one of the first to stand up and insist that I am human whenever an argument on the subject takes place.

Little mishaps such as took place in the Rose and Sugar Bowls are bound to happen and in no way detract from my own fine opinion of myself as a football seer. After all, I batted .500 and that is a fine average in any game. Shucks, that is 200 better than a perfect game in bowling, and such stars as Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, and Joe DiMaggio never attained it in baseball. As a matter of fact, I think it is a credit to me that I am not bragging and strutting. True, I'm smirking a bit, but on the whole I am behaving rather decently and modestly about the whole thing.

Concerning the Rose Bowl game, which was the one I saw, though I listened to two others on the radio, how was I to know that of the 35 players Tennessee brought out only four were going to play the game they were capable of? I'm a sportswriter, not a psychologist. And only four performed their duties. I refer to Ackerman, a substitute center; Butler, a sophmore halfback; Suffridge, a junior guard, and Cifers, a senior end. The rest of the Tennessee cast, to borrow a phrase from the drama critics, was only adequate. No team ever came to the Rose Bowl with a bigger build-up and no team ever had less chance to win. Despite this, Tennessee, with a few breaks of the game, could have "stolen" a tie, and I use the word "stolen" purposely. Take away the slugging penalty that put the ball on their two-yard line with only a minute and 40 seconds to play in the first half, and eliminate the fumble by Fullback Newman late in the game, and the Vols might have come out with a 0-0 or 7-7 tie.

Any sportsman with a liking for victory by the better team must be glad that such a tie didn't result. Because Southern California was at least two, and perhaps three touchdowns the better club on New Year. The Trojans had the better line, the better backfield, the better quarterbacking and the better spirit. When a team with that many advantages doesn't win, it's a shame. Not only a shame but robbery.

* * *

Tennessee was not lacking in one department, however. During all the time they were riding high and winning game after game, they never forgot how to lose. From Coach Neyland down to the last despairing substitute, they took their licking with warming graciousness. They made no excuses, but simply said a great team had beaten them badly.

They lost the game, but not the respect of any who met them or saw them.

THEATERS

THIS and That: 1940 starts out auspiciously for Mickey Rooney. The year-end poll of box office draws found Mickey undisputed king of all Hollywood stars in the matter of box office drawing power. And now M-G-M has given him his first vacation in years. As soon as he finishes "Young Tom Edison," he sails for Honolulu. He's had personal appearances but never a vacation. . . . Early this year Lola and Leota Lane will legally adopt the name of "Lane" as sisters Priscilla and Rosemary did when they were singing in Fred Waring's outfit. They were born Mullican. There is a fifth sister, too. Her name is Martha and she lives in Colorado Springs. . . .

Miss Goddard Featured.

Running through Thursday at the Madison is the screen version of the old stage chiller, "The Cat and the Canary," in which Paulette Goddard plays the Canary. Miss Goddard, who is easy to look at, is really coming into her own after having been held back in her screen career by a contract with Charlie Chaplin. She has been seen in "The Young In Heart," "Dramatic School" and "The Women. In her current featured role she is heir to a madman's millions, who is pursued by a cat-like killer of the bayous.

Hold Over Hardys.

The Hardy family picture at the Ohio will also be held over Thursday. Heart interest and puppy love interest are woven expertly together in "Judge Hardy and Son," with three new "interests" to plague the life of Andy Hardy. June Preiser, the blond charmer of "Babes In Arms" is one of the pretties. Mickey Rooney, of course, heads the cast.

"Chasing Danger" at Ritz.

Preston Foster and Lynn Bari head the cast in "Chasing Danger," one of the Ritz features today and Thursday. The action swings from a Marseilles cafe to Morocco where a revolt is in progress. Foster is a news reel cameraman and Miss Bari is a mysterious factor. The second feature is a return to Mansfield of "Wuthering Heights" with Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier in the roles of the gypsy and the wild Cathy of the English moors.

Western Feud.

The feud between a wheat rancher and a cattle rancher in California provides the action in "Konga, the Wild Stallion," which is being shown at the Park. Fred Stone, veteran of more than a half century on stage and screen, has a leading role, as have Rochelle Hudson and Richard Fiske. On the same bill is "Nothing Sacred" with Carol Lombard and Fredric March.

China Is Background.

Romance, mystery and intrigue of the Orient are mixed in "The Island of Lost Men," which is on the Majestic bill. Anna May Wong plays a Chinese girl who goes to the island in search of her father, a general who has disappeared with $300,000 in public funds. Providing a lighter touch to the bill is "Man About Town" in which Jack Benny pursues Dorothy Lamour. Music and comedy, which includes Rochester, enliven the film.

WAR TENACLES GRIP SINGAPORE

British Soldiers, Fliers Hope to Get in Good Blow at Hitlerism.

SINGAPORE —(U.P.)—Thousands of British troops and aviators stationed in Singapore, 8,000 miles from the western front, are basking in the tropical sun today, yet envying their comrades in the cold and rain of France.

For they all want to "have a cut at Hitler," as they put it, and would rather be in the thick of the fighting in France than guarding this vital empire outpost, which is the cornerstone of British defenses in the Far East, the Indian Ocean and Australia.

Among the troops in Singapore are men of famous Scots regiments and in any place where the men of the services meet, can be heard the broad Scotch accents mixed with those of Lancashire, Yorkshire and the Midlands. Sometimes a voice reveals the presence of a true Cockney.

The men of the R.A.F. come from all over Great Britain and from parts of the dominions. In one group of fliers at a recent gathering, Birmingham, Manchester, Bradford, Middlesborough, London, Hull and Swansea were represented.

And the men, although so far from the Western Front, are on active service in virtually every sense of the word. They are undergoing intensified training as part of the "hardening" process in war time. Some of them are living on war rations. Gun practice and drilling go on continually, the men sweating in cotton drill uniforms while their colleagues in France are trying to keep warm in great-coats and mufflers.

As most of the troops are bachelors or men whose wives are in Britain, they sometimes feel rather lonely. Steps are being taken by authorities to overcome this by providing entertainments.

Aged Brothers Mark Birthday

Two of Mansfield's oldest brothers celebrated their birthdays Saturday night at their annual anniversary dinner. At the left is A. B. Endly, 371 Sherman place, who was 83 years old last Friday, and at the right is E. R. Endly, 22 Sturges avenue, who was 80 years old Sunday. The dinner was held at the younger brother's home. Both are former members of city council.

GETS CITY POST

Huffman Appointed New Law Director at Ashland.

ASHLAND — C. S. Huffman, former director of law in this city, was named to that post again by Mayor Howard S. Lutz on the first day of the latter's administration.

Huffman replaces Attorney George P. Gongwer of Ashland, who resigned that post. Gongwer declared that he was no longer able to continue with the duties of the public office because of his law practice.

The resignation was effective Jan. 1, the same day on which Lutz assumed office. Huffman was appointed the same day.

HIP FRACTURED

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Rachel Heyde, 82, fell Monday in the home of her son, Charles Heyde north west of town and fractured her left hip. She was taken to the General hospital in Mansfield for treatment.

We Are Doing What Others Dare Not Try!
We Were Asked Not To Do This—But Here It Is Regardless!

1937 LINCOLN-ZEPHYR with radio, heater, defrosters and other accessories. Listen to this: has had only one owner who lives locally, has only driven it 33,000 miles; the present tires were installed at 24,000 miles has always been serviced by authorized dealer; the rich broadcloth trim is spotless and the original dark blue finish sparkles like new. Was $625. Now $495

1939 PLYMOUTH DeLuxe 2-Dr. Trg. Sedan. Here is your buy! Push button radio, factory built in heater and defroster, and other accessories; the spotless green finish and mohair trim looks like the day it left the factory; has been serviced regularly and driven with the utmost of care; one owner, locally owned. Traded to us on a 1940 Pontiac. Was $645. Now $595

1938 PONTIAC DeLuxe 6 2-Dr. Touring Sedan. Be sure to see this one. Radio, heater, defrosters, steering column gear shift; 117 inch wheelbase; if you want a modern up-to-date car, you won't miss it on this one—mechanical or in appearance; one of our best buys! One owner, locally owned. Was $645. Now $575

1937 PONTIAC Dlx. 6 3-pass. Coupe. Heater, defroster; dark green finish with mohair trim; one owner, locally owned. We have always serviced this car every 1,000 miles. This would make you a good second car in the family as it has been driven so little and had such good care. Was $495. Now $395

1937 CHEVROLET Master DeLuxe 2-Dr. Touring Sedan. Heater and defroster; clock, flexible wheel, lighter; all 4 chrome wheels; rich maroon finish, cord trim; one owner, locally owned; very low mileage. One of the best buys of our sale. Was $495. Now..... $425

1936 CADILLAC 4-Dr. Touring Sedan with the famous Fleetwood body; 4 practically new Firestone tires—latest type that cost over $125; motor has just been completely reconditioned by an authorized Cadillac dealer and amounted to more than $100. In other words, this car is ready for approximately 50,000 miles of trouble-free service. Not another car in town like this one. Large Cadillac radio, heater and defroster; 6 wheel equipment; not a scratch on the finish or a spot on the rich broadcloth trim. You cannot believe that a car could have had such flawless care. Owned by one of Mansfield's most prominent people. Owner's name and address on request. You must see this exceptional buy that will sell for less than one-third of its retail price. Was $600. Now $525

1938 PONTIAC DeLuxe 6 4-Dr. Trg. Sedan. Heater, defroster, clock, wheel rings, grill guard. Here is the one you're waiting on! Absolutely marvelous sparkling black finish and spotless rich mohair upholstering; the original tires show very little wear. You can't believe that a car used a year and a half can still be like when new. Be sure to see it at our sale. Please ask us the owner's name. Was $675. Now $595

1939 PLYMOUTH Dlx. Coupe. Here is the cleanest car in Mansfield! Sparkling glossy green finish with mohair trim; the original tires show hardly any wear; equipped with a large factory heater with defrosters and steering column gear shift. The man who owned this car will gladly recommend it, as it has had such little use. Was $595. Now $535

1937 OLDS. DeLuxe 8 4-Dr. Touring Sedan. Large factory radio, heater, defrosters and electric clock, other accessories too numerous to mention. Finished in the original tan with broadcloth trim. The lady who owned this car will gladly recommend it to any prospective buyer. Her name and address on request. Was $675. Now $545

1937 FORD DeLuxe 85 Sport 6 Passenger Club Coupe. Only 16,000 actual miles with the Ford radio clock, flexible wheel and wheel rings; former owner requested that we have any prospective buyers get in touch with him. The appearance and mechanical condition is marvelous. Was $435. Now $375

1936 PONTIAC DeLuxe 6 2-Dr. Touring Sedan. Pontiac radio, heater and defroster; sparkling glossy black finish with mohair trim. The new tires were only installed 6 weeks ago; one owner, locally owned. Sold new and serviced by us. Was $445. Now $375

1937 DODGE Dlx. 4-Dr. Touring Sedan. Custom built radio, heater and defroster, clock, flexible wheel and other accessories; 4 brand new tires; very low mileage. The lady who owned this car has given it the utmost in service; the original green finish and mohair trim shows that the lady always had pride in this car. This lady, and you may have her name and address, will gladly give you any information you may desire on this car. Was $575. Now $495

1935 DODGE DeLuxe 4-Dr. Touring Sedan. Radio, heater, defroster; one owner, locally owned. You want to see this one; finished in glossy gunmetal grey with deep mohair trim; large roomy trunk; mechanically perfect. Was $345. $295

1937 BUICK 4-Dr. Touring Sedan. Century model; radio, heater, defroster, clock, flexible wheel and wheel rings; an actual 22,000 miles; this man also preferred our Pontiac Torpedo. The rich metallic grey finish shows no wear and the mohair trim was covered the day it left the local showroom, so you can easily see why we can say this has the appearance and dependability of a new car. Was $675. Now $575

1937 PONTIAC DeLuxe 6 4-Dr. Touring Sedan. Large heater, defroster, and other accessories; glossy black finish with mohair trim. Did you ever drive a 1937 Pontiac? If you didn't, here's your opportunity. Rides and drives like most any of the new 1940 cars today. This car has had only one owner and he lives in Mansfield. Make sure to see this money saving buy. Was $565. Now $495

1938 CHEVROLET Master DeLuxe 2-Dr. Touring Sedan. Large new heater and battery that is only 3 weeks old, other extra accessories; rich spotless grey finish and mohair trim; locally owned; any other information you may desire is available. This man also bought a Pontiac. Was $545. Now $495

SAW YOUR PAL CLARE WITH HER FRIEND SAWYER THE OTHER NIGHT —SHE'S PRETTY STRONG FOR HIM, ISN'T SHE PAM?
YES- SHE IS, NORMAN BUT SHE'S PROMISED DAVID NOT TO MARRY HIM FOR A WHILE YET
BUT IF PAM COULD SEE CLARE NOW!
OH, CRAIG! I'LL JUST DIE IF YOU LEAVE ME FOR A LONG TIME!
I'M NOT GOING TO LEAVE YOU, SWEET-HEART, BECAUSE YOU'RE GOING WITH ME!— I'VE GOT IT ALL PLANNED— WE'LL DRIVE OVER TO CENTER-VILLE AND GET MAR-RIED! I'VE ALREADY PHONED FRIENDS THERE ABOUT ARRANGE-MENTS!
LET ME PHONE DAVID, CRAIG — TALK WITH HIM ABOUT IT!
NO — DON'T DO THAT, HONEY —HE'D ONLY TRY TO PER-SUADE YOU NOT TO— HE'S SO-SO CONSERVATIVE, YOU KNOW!
IT WOULD BE FUN - ELOPING! I COULD DO IT, ALL RIGHT —PAM'S OUT FOR THE EVENING!
WE'D SEND HER A WIRE —SURPRISE HER!
THE STAGE IS CERTAINLY ALL SET FOR THE SUCCESS OF SAWYER'S PLANS!
AND HIS PERSUASIONS FINALLY WIN!— CLARE AGREES!

CAFETERIA FOR HENS PLANNED

Ohio Experts Say Food Should Be Available at All Times.

COLUMBUS— (INS) —Feeding of chickens in cafeteria style is the latest "wrinkle" in the poultry business

Specialists in poultry husbandry at Ohio State university recently recommended placing of corn and oats, or corn oats and wheat in separate hoppers where the birds can select them at will. Concentrated mash containing from 24 to 32 per cent protein should be in another hopper accessible to the birds at all times.

Experiments the specialists said, have shown that the hens do a good job of feeding themselves if the necessary foods are available.

Feeders and hoppers the specialists said, should be built so that the birds cannot stand in the feed or scratch quantities of it out on the floor.

LIKE FERRY HOME

ISLESBORO, Me.—(U.P.)—Two industrious and marine minded martins did their best to set up housekeeping in the whistle of the Islesboro-Lincolnville ferry. But every time the boat whistle tooted, the blast wrecked their fragile "home." The crew finally persuaded the pair to build the love-nest on a dock near the ferry-slip.

METEOR STONE ATTRACTS

WEYBURN, Sask.—(U.P.)—An oblong stone, believed to be of meteoric origin has attracted scores of interested persons to the farm of Duncan McLeod, 17 miles south of here. McLeod found the stone imbedded at a depth of 10 feet and at an angle of 45 degrees when he was excavating a dugout. It weighs 45 pounds.

LIST RUNS UP GAINS IN MILD MARKET RALLY

Advances Range From Fractions to Point After Quiet Opening; Steels Higher.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK Virtually all divisions of the stock market participated in a mild rally today.

The opening was quiet and business continued at a slow pace thereafter. Gains of fractions to around a point were scattered throughout the list later.

Included in the upturn were U S. Steel, Bethlehem, International Harvester, American Telephone, Anaconda, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Edison, New York Central and Pennsylvania railroad.

The apathy of traders was explained by the fact congress was to meet at noon, with President Roosevelt's annual message due two hours later. The report of the Dies committee on unAmerican activities was also expected.

Markets at London and Amsterdam were inclined to be stronger in the gilt-edged sections, otherwise irregular. Commodities pointed upward as did bonds.

Of special Wall Street interest were the Dec. 31 condition statements of the big New York banks of which the city has five in the billion-dollar deposit classification compared with three a year ago. Virtually all showed increased holdings of U. S. treasury bonds in the final quarter.

2 Hunters Sent To Prison After Row With Farmers

Two Bellville hunters who put up a battle when ordered from two Washington township farms recently were sentenced to 90-day terms in the Columbus workhouse today by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

Fines were also assessed against the men, but were suspended on condition of good behavior.

Clarence Lape, 26, found guilty of assault and battery at a hearing yesterday, was sent to the workhouse and fined $200.

His companion, Clark Walker, 24, indicted for pointing firearms, pleaded guilty today as the petit jury assembled to try the case, and was fined $200 in addition to the workhouse term.

Lape was found guilty of striking Bert Walters, Washington township farmer, [illegible] with a gun.

Walker admitted pointing a gun at Paul Zuber, [illegible] on a farm adjoining that of Walters' property. The [illegible] ordered Walker [illegible] costs.

'BE PREPARED,' PRESIDENT SAYS TO CONGRESS

Message Calls for 'Common Sense' Increase of Army and Navy Forces.

out of war and pretending that this war is none of our business."

The senators, representatives, cabinet members and invited guests who packed the chamber and its galleries listened intently as he spoke. A step or so above and behind him on the rostrum sat Vice-President Garner and Speaker Bankhead also paying close heed to every word of the message which they and the senate and house majority leaders went over in the rough with the chief executive yesterday.

Extend Trade Pacts.

With his discussion of international problems the president linked a defense of the reciprocal trade treaty program—a program which has given every indication of becoming one of the storm centers of the session.

The trade agreements act, he said, "should be extended as an indispensable part of the foundation of any stable and durable peace." He added:

"The first president of the United States warned us against entangling foreign alliances. The present president of the United States subscribes to and follows that precept.

"But trade co-operation with the rest of the world does not violate that precept in any way."

At that point, Mr. Roosevelt made a transition to the defense portions of his speech:

"Even as through these trade agreements we prepare to co-operate in a world that wants peace, we must likewise be prepared to take care of ourselves if the world cannot attain peace," he said.

"For several years past we have been compelled to strengthen our own national defense. That has created a very large portion of our treasury deficits.

"This year in the light of continuing world uncertainty, I am asking the congress for army and navy increases, which are based not on panic but on common sense. They are not as great as enthusiastic alarmists seek. They are not as small as unrealistic persons claiming superior private information would demand."

"As will appear in the annual budget tomorrow," the president said, "the only important increase in any part of the budget is the estimate for national defense. Practically all other important items show a reduction.

"Therefore, in the hope that we can continue in these days of increasing economic prosperity to reduce the federal deficit, I am asking the congress to levy sufficient additional taxes to meet the emergency spending for national defense."

The general welfare of the people, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, lies behind the army and navy as the ultimate line of defense. While production is back at 1929 level, he said, the unemployment of millions supplies a symptom of unadjusted difficulties in the economic system.

"We refuse the European solution of using the unemployed to build up excessive armaments which eventually result in dictatorships," the chief executive declared.

"We encourage an American way — through an increase of national income which is the only way we can be sure will take up the slack. Much progress has been made; much remains to be done."

But he did not say how far the country had moved toward the goal he set a year ago in his message to congress, a national income of $80,000,000,000.

'Peace Party' Out.

At one point in his address Mr. Roosevelt said the time was long past when "any political party or any particular group can curry and capture public favor by labeling itself the 'peace party' or the 'peace bloc'."

"That label," he said, "belongs to the whole United States and every right thinking man, woman and child within it."

Out of all the military and diplomatic turmoil, propaganda and counter-propaganda of the present world, Mr. Roosevelt spelled, in four admonitions to the United States:

1. Never before has the United States government "done so much as in our recent past to establish and maintain the policy of the good neighbor with its sister nations."

2. In almost every country there is a true public belief that the United States has been, and will continue to be, "a potent and active factor in seeking the re-establishment of peace."

"In these past years," he said, we have had a clean record of peace and goodwill. It is an open book that cannot be altered or defamed. It is a record that must be continued and enlarged."

Although he emphasized at one point "the leadership which this nation can take in the time ahead for a revival of world peace," the chief executive did not venture a guess on when that time might arrive.

Steering Clear of War.

He said he could understand the feelings of those who warn they would never consent again to the sending of American youth to fight on Europe's soil and added:

"But as I remember, nobody has asked them to consent—for nobody expects such an undertaking.

"The overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens do not abandon in the slightest their hope and expectation that the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Several times, however, the president observed that this country could not help feel the impact of the wars abroad. That impact, he said at the start of his message, makes it natural to approach "the state of the union" through a discussion of foreign affairs.

We still believe with the framers of the constitution, the chief executive stressed, that "our best defense is the promotion of our general welfare and domestic tranquility."

"You are well aware," he said, "that dictatorships and the philosophy of force which justifies and accompanies dictatorships — have originated in almost every case in the necessity for drastic action to improve internal conditions where democratic action for one reason or another has failed to respond to modern needs and modern demands."

That was one of several references to dictators. Near the conclusion of his address, touching on the same subject, the president said:

"This is the danger to which we in America must begin to be more alert. For the apologists for foreign aggressors and equally those selfish and partisan groups at home who wrap themselves in a false mantle of Americanism to promote their own economic financial or political advantage, are now trying European tricks upon us, seeking to muddy the stream of our national thinking, weakening us in the face of danger, by trying to set our own people to fighting among themselves.

"Such tactics are what have helped to plunge Europe into war. We must combat them, as we would the plague, if American integrity and security are to be preserved. We cannot afford to face the future as a disunited people.

"We must as a united people keep ablaze on this continent the flames of human liberty, of reason, of democracy and of fair play as living things to be preserved for the better world that is to come."

BIGELOW STILL BLOCKS VOTE

Pension Leader Refuses to Join Either Opposing Faction.

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Cincinnati's deadlocked council today continued its efforts to elect a mayor.

Center of the controversy was Councilman Herbert Bigelow, author of the "$50 at 60" pension plan.

Bigelow refused to align with either the four Republicans or four Charterites, thus blocking election of a mayor.

The Charterites denied Republican assertions that they had made a "deal" with Bigelow whereby he would vote for their mayoralty candidate, Councilman Charles P. Taft. The Republicans were backing former Mayor James G. Stewart.

high was 14. Other cities in Ohio also had their coldest weather of the season today. It was zero in Columbus, two below at Dayton, three above at Cincinnati, 12 above at Akron and Youngstown, and 13 above at Cleveland.

Two more days of equally cold weather will close the Ohio river to traffic at Cincinnati, rivermen said. The river already is frozen over at a number of points.

Three persons died in the Dayton area as a result of the cold and slippery highways. One of them was Horace E. Gray, 52, former president of the Dayton Real Estate board, who slipped under the wheels of a truck. The truck driver had stopped to help Gray who had a flat tire on his car.

105,000 REDS BATTLE FINNS

Russia Mobilizes Huge Army on Mannerheim Line for Push Against Finns.

men making up the 163d infantry division were drawn up on ice-covered Lake Kianta when the Finns surrounded them, it was said. The lake is in the "waistline" sector of the eastern frontier. More than 1,000 were killed before a tight ring was drawn around the remainder, according to the Finns.

Many Prisoners Taken.

After opening up the trap to allow Russian reinforcements to enter, the Finns closed in again and set up machine-gun nests along the shore, it was said. Land forces attacked the bottled up enemy by night and the airforce by day.

Soviet troops, trucks and cannon dropped into the water when bombs blasted great holes in the ice.

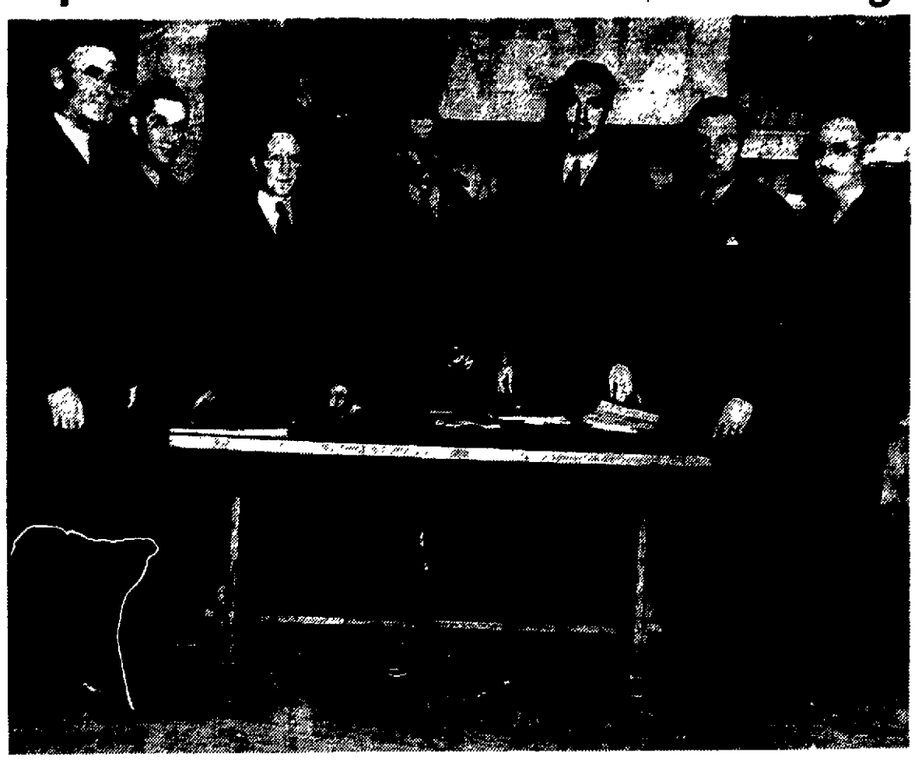
Panic-stricken, the survivors fled in confusion but large numbers were reported taken prisoner.

Reporting new successes, a Finnish communique yesterday said seven Soviet planes were shot down.

In a day-long attack by the Russians at Aittajoki, about 60 miles north of Lake Ladoga, the Finns reported they seized and held the Russion base after it had "passed from hand to hand."

Aittajoki, about 13 miles from the Russian border, was presumed to be one of the Russian operations bases.

Sportsmen Install New Officers at Meeting



The above officers of the Richland County Fish and Game association were installed at the first meeting of 1940 last night at the North Lake pavilion. They are, left to right, Howard R. Hyatt, treasurer; Dale Mowry, license secretary; Ed Felton, vice-president; John C. Friday, president; John L. Catlett, secretary; Roscoe McGinty, membership secretary, and J. R. Heilman, director of the League of Ohio sportsmen.

BOARD BUYS 2 PLAYLOT SITES

Purchases Grounds at Junior, Senior Highs for Expanded Physical Education Plan.

Temple court, and Herman and Atherton avenues, the properties have been used for playgrounds. Miller said the land will provide for a football field and recreational equipment.

Seventeen vacant lots west of Stadium field at Senior high school will be acquired by the board of education for approximately $10,200, providing for a football practice field, tennis courts, a softball diamond and athletic facilities for girls. The board has held options on 14 of the lots.

The lots are owned by T. A. Jones, Mrs. G. C. Endly, Mrs. Catherine Fry, Frank Yarger, Oscar Chronister, Mrs. Theresa Flowers, M. L. Daugherty, Frank Long, H. C. Imhoff, Ed. Flaherty, and Helen Koppes.

Authorizes Bonds.

The board clerk was authorized to write bonds totaling $23,000 under the 10-mill limitation to provide for the purchase of the lots. Issuance of the bonds in that amount requires no vote of the people.

Miller told the board that "extraordinary expenses totaling $25,000 in 1939 would be eliminated this year, leaving the schools at least that much in their general fund to retire the bonds next year.

Among the "unusual" expenditures he listed were $4,000 for office and school room rent that will not be needed after the new junior high school buildings are ready, $2,968 in back water bills, $1,500 interest on school foundation notes, $3,000 for additional transportation, and $9,100 for work on the the new school buildings not financed under the general contracts.

Miller said the appointment of Eisaman as clerk would save the board nearly $1,500 in salaries and office rent. Eisaman will receive $2,500 a year for the combined jobs, approximately $1,200 less than the clerk and attendance officer positions paid separately.

The elimination of a separate office for the clerk in the Richland Trust building will save about $300 in rent, Miller added. Eisaman will have his headquarters in the superintendent's office.

INJURIES FATAL

Nebraska Congressman Dies After Auto Accident Dec. 26.

MORRILTON, Ark.—(AP)—Rep. George H. Heinke (R., Neb.), 57, died in a hospital here last night from injuries received in an automobile accident Dec. 26.

He and Mrs. Heinke, 51, of Nebraska City, Neb., were hurt when their automobile, in which they were en route to Washington, and another collided in a snowstorm near here. A woman in the other car was killed.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Heinke, who suffered fractures of both legs and a broken right arm, was "doing as well as could be expected."

TWO LEVIES APPROVED

LEBANON—(AP)—Voters in special elections yesterday approved a 2.7-mill levy in the Hamilton-Mainville school district and a one-mill levy in the Harlan-Butlerville school district. Similar levies were defeated last November.

GROUP INSTALLS 1940 OFFICERS

County Fish, Game Association Hears Reports of Past Year's Activities.

Reports of the past year's activities were given and 1940 officers installed at a meeting of the Richland County Fish and Game association last night in North Lake park pavilion.

Installed were John C. Friday, president; Eddie Felton, vice-president; John L. Catlett, secretary; Howard R. Hyatt, treasurer; J. R. Heilman, director of the League of Ohio Sportsmen; Dale Mowry, license secretary, and Roscoe McGinty, membership secretary.

Delegates elected to attend a meeting of the League of Ohio Sportsmen in Columbus, Jan. 21 and 22, were Friday, Catlett, and J. R. Heilman, director of the league.

Reports were given by committee chairmen on the amount of game released in the county during 1939. Fred Frankeberger reported that 462 pheasants were released; Carl Stewart, 30 coons; Harvey Stewart, 600 rabbits, and Clarence Silcott, six 10-gallon cans of fish, mostly bass. Heilman reported 3,260 fish license were sold and 3,086 hunting license issued.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 6.

was knocked unconscious, and that by the time he recovered and ran to the street the alarm had been put in.

Rescues Wife.

C. F. Callahan, a bartender, rescued his wife from their third story apartment by running down three flights of stairs with her. Callahan said:

"I think there are other people on the third floor who had no chance to escape."

He was preparing to leave for work when he smelled the smoke, found the fire and returned to help his wife to safety.

Besides Mathis, the only other victim identified immediately was Florence Hessing, 30.

The Marlborough was a residential hotel. Approximately 200 persons lived in the 80 apartments.

Three-fourths of the city's fire apparatus was called to the apartment building as firemen fought vainly to control the flames.

All stairways were choked with flame before the first fire company arrived, and the interior of the building was gutted before the searching parties were able to fight their way in through the heavy smoke.

The extreme cold hampered the fire fighters as ice formed on the building and on the streets from water sprayed from the fire hoses.

DIES REPORTS TO CONGRESS

Declares Million Americans Affected by Subversive Element in U. S.

forts of all groups and on strict law enforcement.

8. The committee, which expires tonight, should be continued to make certain that the "confusion" among subversive organizations "is turned into complete rout."

Those who signed the report in person were Representatives Dempsey, Starnes (D-Ala.), Casey (D-Mass.), Voorhis (D-Calif.), Thomas (R-N.J.) and Mason (R-Ill.). The name of Chairman Dies (D-Tex.), who is ill at Orange, Tex., was affixed by a clerk.

The report asserted that Communists early attempted to gain a foothold in the American Federation of Labor, then switched to the CIO.

"It is unmistakably clear," the committee said, "that the overwhelming majority of the members of the CIO as well as its president are not Communists or Communist sympathizers, but sincere American workers seeking to improve their lot in life in perfectly legitimate American fashion."

But the report said that on the basis of testimony, Communist leadership was entrenched in these unions:

National Maritime union; United Cannery, Packing, and Allied workers; Federation of Architects; Chemists and Technicians; Fur Workers International union; International Longshoremen's and Warehouseman's union; American Communications association; United Electrical Radio and Mechanical Workers of America; United Furniture Workers of America.

JOIN IN TRIBUTE TO ASHBROOK

Roosevelt, Farley Wire Widow, Say Nation Loses Official 'of Highest Integrity.'

and Vic Donahey, and Representatives Robert Crosser, Robert T. Secrest, James G. Polk and Tom Jenkins. Crosser was one of Ashbrook's closest friends in the national capital.

While plans went forward today for the last rites for the veteran congressman who was one of the few men in the house serving 23 years ago when this country declared war, speculation was rife as to who would fill his place.

Reports were current in Washington today, according to the Associated Press, that Charles West, Mr. Ashbrook's immediate predecessor and more recently under secretary of the interior, might be a candidate for the office.

West is a resident of this district, is known to stand well with the president, and when in Mansfield recently intimated that he would come back to the political arena in Ohio.

Special elections to fill the two vacancies which now exist in Ohio's congressional ranks may be called before the May primary elections, a spokesman for Gov. John W. Bricker said.

The governor previously had said that he would not call a special election in the case of Congressman Chester Bolton of the 22nd district because of the expense involved, but it was thought possible that with the death of the second Ohio congressman, he might call elections in the two districts. The secretary of states' office estimated today that special elections would cost about $20,000 in the 17th district, and $30,000 in the 22nd district.

DEATH HELD SUICIDE

DAYTON —(INS)— A verdict of suicide was returned today in the death of Mrs. Mary Jones, 37, who leaped from the second-floor window of her Dayton home. She was understood to have been in failing health.

If Your Child Has A NASTY COLD

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do

Rub chest, throat, and back thoroughly with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Right away VapoRub goes to work to relieve the misery.

VapoRub brings double relief because of its double action. It acts both as a stimulating poultice and a medicated vapor. Its poultice action penetrates the surface skin; its soothing vapors are breathed direct to irritated air passages. Try it. You'll find that often by morning most of the misery of the cold is gone.

KENNEDY SEEKS NOMINATION AS OHIO GOVERNOR

Former Democratic Secretary of State Criticizes 'Lack of State Leadership.'

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—William J. Kennedy, former secretary of state, declared his candidacy yesterday for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Kennedy, 56, asserted "the state has failed to show leadership in the relief and unemployment situation." The present administration is "blinded by personal ambition," he said, and is "determined to establish a financial record even at the cost of moral bankruptcy."

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, has asserted he would be a candidate for a second term.

Democrat Herbert S. Duffy, former attorney general who, like Kennedy, was swept from office in the 1938 Republican swing, also has announced for governor. Charles Sawyer, who lost to Bricker in 1939, and former Gov. Martin L. Davey have not indicated whether they will enter the Democratic race.

Kennedy is regional U. S. wage-hour administrator here.

In his attack on the present administration's relief stand, Kennedy said "the need for economy was never greater than it is today, but to let people starve, whether they live on the farm or in the city, is inhuman and false economy.

"We must face and solve this problem and not, like the ostrich, bury our head in the sand. No crisis was ever solved by running away from it."

Kennedy, a Welsh immigrant at the age of 24, announced that James F. Connors, his former assistant secretary of state and a Cleveland lawyer, was in charge of his temporary headquarters. Kennedy was four times a Cleveland city councilman. Under former Gov. George White, he was assistant state welfare director until he resigned to become public service director in Cleveland. He later was Cleveland manager of the Home Owners' Loan corporation.

PROVIDE 2,600 MEALS IN MONTH

Volunteers Report Increase in Aid to Needy in December.

An increase in the number of meals served by the Volunteers of America during December was reported by Rev. R. T. White, superintendent, today.

Including the special Christmas dinner, 2,674 meals were served in December, increasing the daily average to 86 meals, Rev. White said.

Under a new plan adopted by the Volunteers, opportunity work is being given physically and otherwise handicapped men, many of whom cannot pass the physical examinations of industry, he pointed out. Temporary emergency work-relief is also given to many others, he added.

SURVEY STARTS FOR AIR BASE

2,000 Officers and Men to Be Stationed at New 'City' Connecticut Valley.

(By United Press)

CHICOPEE, Mass — Survivors already are at work on the new Army Northeast Air Base—a "city within a city."

Plans and specifications for the base, already available, provide for a chapel, theater, postoffice, library, athletic field, tennis courts, gymnasium, hospital, firehouse and a guardhouse.

Invitations for bids on the project will be sent out in Washington soon, and it is expected that construction will start some time in the spring.

About 2,000 officers and men will be stationed at the base, which will be situated in the Connecticut river valley on a seven square mile plateau formerly used for tobacco farming.

According to present plans, the base will be supplied with food and equipment by a special spur track to be built by the Boston & Maine railroad. This line will handle 80,000 tons of freight yearly, it is estimated.

One of seven new bases planned by the government, the Chicopee field was selected because of its central location in the industrial area.

There will be four huge runways on the field, several hangars, an air corps supply building, quartermaster warehouse, buildings for the signal and medical corps, and a radio and meteorology building.

About 24 planes will be stationed at the field—which is less than an hour's flying time from New York and Boston.

ARMY TO SEEK RECRUITS HERE

Officer to be in City Tomorrow to Interview Applicants.

Enlistments for vacancies in the air corps and the anti-aircraft coast artillery of the United States Army will be accepted Thursday at the Mansfield post office by Corp. Pangborn P. Parsons of the Akron recruiting office. Parsons will be at the Mansfield office from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. to answer any questions concerning the service.

Applications will be accepted for air corps vacancies at Patterson Field, O., Maxwell Field, Ala., and Fort Bragg, N. C., and vacancies in the 68th Anti-Aircraft Coast artillery at Fort Williams, Me.

Census Takers Get Last Minute Instructions

Four Richland county business and industrial census enumerators, who began their work today, are shown above as they received last-minute instructions from A. W. Strater, seated, assistant district supervisor. They are, left to right: Gail Haun, Shelby; Todd J. Patton, Mansfield; Strater, Spiros A. Breres, Mansfield and D. L. C. Buchanan, Mansfield. These men will gather information about payrolls, number of employes, volume of business, and inventories. Strater said information obtained by the enumerators will be held in strict confidence. "The figures will not show the financial standing of any firm and no other department or private enterprise will have access to them," he asserted. When the population and agricultural census starts April 1 a larger number of enumerators will be put to work.

CANADIAN TROOPS TRANSPORTED TO WAR WITH SHARP PRECISION

OTTAWA — (U.P.) — Now that Canada's first contribution of man power to the British army has crossed the Atlantic in safety and the Dominion troops are "somewhere" in England, the story of their assembly and transport may be told.

It was known that men had been mobilized in various centers in Canada undergoing training and in time soldiers were seen in the streets of towns and cities garbed in the new design of "battle" uniform, but during the early days of preparation, there was little of the bustle and excitement such as marked the mobilization of the First Canadian Contingent which in the fall of 1914 set forth from Canada on that great adventure which was to continue until 1918.

At various "zero" hours timed differently in the nine provinces of the Dominion, officers and men of combatant forces and the ancillary services were assembled complete with arms and equipment. These units then were moved to their rail head, usually being conveyed in buses, a touch which may stir a bit of envy in those elders who recall their own setting off in 1914.

At each appointed rail head a train was waiting. For those units traveling from distant points, a normal train consisted of a baggage car for personal baggage—it was said to average five tons for an infantry unit—nine, ten or more colonist cars, a standard sleeping car for officers, a commissary car and a car for the cooks and waiters, making the trains of from 12 to 18 cars and accommodating from 400 to 600 officers and men.

The colonist cars furnished ample sleeping accommodation for the "other ranks" and as each man had been provided with two blankets, his comfort during the journey was fairly well assured.

To feed such a number of men during a train journey, which in some instances was to occupy several days, presented an unusual problem. The commissary car was placed in the middle of the colonist car section. It was not a formal dining car in the accepted sense, with set tables and chairs, but rather a rolling cafeteria.

The senior officer on each train was in command while a traveling passenger official from the railway staff acted as liaison between the military command, the train crew and the railway operating staff.

At all railway divisional points the trains were swept clean, watered and iced. At all such places, the men disembarked and had a jog in the fresh air.

Close Schedules Kept.

These troop trains were operated over a period of several days and so scheduled as to arrive at the port of embarkation during three days. They were timed so as to reach their destination at two hour intervals. As a train drew in, its occupants were quickly marched up the gangplank, assigned to quarters on shipboard and everything and everybody were in the clear before the next following train drew into the port railway terminal.

The railway movement was carried out efficiently, not an untoward incident marked the progress of any train, schedules were maintained, with one exception, and the delay of that particular train did not cause any upset in the time-table so well prepared in advance.

SOLDIER RELIEF GROUPS RECEIVE COUNTY'S OKAY

19 Committees Appointed for City, Townships to Certify Burial Reports.

Nineteen soldiers' relief committees had been approved today by the county commissioners for Mansfield and the county's 18 townships.

The committee appointments were made from names submitted by the Richland County Soldiers and Sailors Relief commission. The committees must certify the burial reports for indigent ex-service men in their communities before the county commissioners will approve funds for burial expenses.

J. G. Wallace, Mansfield, is president of the county soldiers and sailors relief commission. L. A. Cook, Mansfield, is vice president and Mrs. Della M. Cochran, Mansfield, is secretary.

Members of the Mansfield relief committees are:

Ward 1—Earl J. Ports, 30 Vennum avenue, W. C. Mead, 53 Wolfe avenue; Ward 2—Van C. Cook, 107 Sherman avenue; R. M. James, 131 Highland avenue; Ward 3—Tom Bell, 563 West Fourth street; F. Thane Shaw, 544 Park avenue west; Ward 4—Charles Young, 468 North Mulberry street; V. C. Hageman, 151 Harker street; Ward 5—Richard H. Rickets, 67 East Fourth street; Louis Bingert, 75 East Fourth street; Ward 6—Kenneth L. Leonard, 137 South Main street; H. B. Emmer, 175 South Franklin avenue.

The 24 township committeemen are:

Bloominggrove and Franklin townships — Vernon Greenawalt and Charles Kirkwood, both of R. D. 2, Shiloh; Butler township—Finley Kirkwood, R. D. 2, Greenwich, and Raymond Landis, R. D. 3, Shiloh.

Cass township—Glenn Swanger and Fred Shirey, both of Shiloh; Jefferson township—Orval Keirns, and Fred Gregg, both of Bellville; Madison and Weller townships—Floyd Buzzard, R D 3, Mansfield, and Neil Robinson, R D. 1, Mansfield.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1940.

By now you should be writing it "1940" without even a gesture toward the 3 key.

After all, it is not the Russian soldiers who are responsible for the invasion of Finland—they are merely doing the dying.

George Bernard Shaw feels it necessary to explain that he isn't God—this being his first indication of an inferiority complex.

Important Post to Be Filled

WHATEVER procedure is decided upon in choosing a successor to the late William A. Ashbrook as the Seventeenth Ohio district's representative in congress, a point to be kept in mind is that this is a position of larger responsibility than is sometimes realized, and that great care should be taken in making the selection.

In addition to representing the district from which he is sent, a congressman fitted for the job must have a broad understanding of national and international conditions and problems and should also be a man of sound judgment, dependable courage and unimpeachable character.

This district, in the past, has not been entirely free of congressional aspirants who were generally recognized as in no way qualified for the position, and, insofar as possible, both political parties should make an effort to discourage the candidacy of persons who are either partisan hangers-on, habitual self-seekers or victims of a one-track mind concentrated on some particular idealistic scheme.

Made up of six counties—Richland, Ashland, Knox, Delaware, Coshocton and Licking — the Seventeenth district's representation in congress has long been confined to Licking county, southernmost in the district. While it was Mr. Ashbrook who was so creditably representing this district, there was no serious inclination on the part of Richland county—largest in the district—to raise this point of deserving consideration in the selection of a congressman.

It now appears, however, that the claims of Richland county to this recognition merit thoughtful consideration throughout the district—and that finding the right man for the place should surmount partisan bias.

This district has been fortunate in its representation in congress for many years. It should be satisfied with nothing less than the best man available as the successor of Congressman Ashbrook.

Economy Talked, Not Practiced

BUDGET, budget, who'll cut the budget? Everybody talks national economy but few are found who will practice it. Senators are already stepping forward to explain why certain large federal expenditures in their respective states, for farm parity payments, or reclamation service, or this or that other excellent purpose, simply must not be curtailed.

It is generally admitted that defense costs must rise, not diminish. Heads of departments and government bureaus, close enough to the work to see its great importance, say their particular appropriations must not be reduced.

The orgy of governmental extravagance that has been in progress through the past seven years, with a constantly mounting federal debt, makes any steps toward substantial reductions seem impossible. An easier, and more natural, New Deal course would be to continue deficit spending—and leave it to a future administration to put the nation back on a sound financial footing.

Early Architecture Commended

DON'T scorn houses because they're old. If experts know what they're talking about, the best homes in America were built in the forty years just before the Civil war. The architectural character of American towns from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes and the Mississippi was formed during that period, says Talbot F. Hamlin of the Columbia University School of Architecture.

"Never before or since," he declares, "has there been a period when the general level of excellence was so high in American architecture, when the ideal was so constant and its varying expressions so harmonious, when the towns and villages, large and small, had in them so much of unostentatious unity and loveliness. Walking through such towns, one falls at once under the influence of this spirit and feels that the buildings were designed by, and built for, a people who had a new, vivid, almost overmastering esthetic sensitiveness and love of beauty in form and line."

In town after town, he adds, in Connecticut and New York and Ohio and various southern states, the seeker will find both large and small houses of the '30s and '40s all with the same "manners," the same rightness of proportion and graciousness of detail.

It is a sad drop from that, he thinks, to much of the house-building of the last decade or two, with its confusion of materials and colors and lack of pleasing proportion.

Excessive Zeal Dangerous

THERE is danger, in times like these, that an espionage inquiry might develop into witch-hunting. Officials and patriotic volunteers, in their zeal, tend to lose their judgment and normal regard for constitutional rights. Sometimes good citizens are wronged by such excessive zeal.

It is reassuring, therefore, as a special grand jury convenes in Washington to investigate espionage and sabotage, that Attorney General Murphy announces: "This department has as much duty in the preservation of physical, intellectual, religious and property rights as it has against those who violate the law."

It is just as important to observe the law as it is to hunt lawbreakers and traitors. Investigators and prosecutors should never lose sight of the constitutional Bill of Rights.

Billion-Dollar Business

FIGURES from Hollywood show that Americans are faithful movie-goers. The average weekly attendance was 85,000,000 in 1939.

The average admission price was twenty-three cents, making a tidy total of more than a billion dollars in box office receipts during the year. Film Daily reports that Hollywood studios spent $165,000,000 producing the pictures the 85,000,000 patrons went to see each week. That means the public spent about six dollars for every dollar the producer spent. It was a pretty good bargain for the public, since it meant a ride or two, for the money.

There is no insurance against the breaking of New Year resolutions.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The cargo nets were slung and the lifting cranes were hoisting great crates of materials from the Mauretania's hold. She had crept in during the night and attached herself to the Cunard White Star docks at the end of 50th street—Pier 90, it is called. Earlier that morning a fleet of armored cars had taken away what was rumored to have been a cargo of gold, sent over by the British.

The Mauretania is not an old ship, but she looked like a derelict as she lay at dock's-edge. Her anchors and her chains were rusty. She had been painted a dirty gray, which had worn away in spots, so that now she gave up the appearance of a tramp that had arrived by some mischance of rerouting at the slip of a gentleman's anchorage.

But there was no mistake. She was made to look that way on purpose, so that the eyes of prowling submarine captains would have trouble in seeing her against the background of the sea.

ON THE other side of the pier, in the slip occupied by the two greatest oceanic liners afloat, lay the Normandie and the Queen Mary. There had been a rumor that the Queen Mary might slip out during the night and try to get back to the mother port, and though it was no weather for a fireside adventurer to be abroad in, I went down to the waterfront, just on the off-chance that something would be afoot.

In her dull, battleship gray she looked like a ghost ship, but if she intended to make a break for it, there was much that needed to be done. Her funnels were covered. Already the salt had caught her great anchors. Her chains were rusty and a great drift of river moss which she had brought up from the bottom trailed from her anchors to waterline. She rode high, which bespoke an empty hold. Her lifeboats—nine rows on each side—were canvas covered and locked.

AS I eyed her mighty prow Officer 4447 eased up beside me. I showed him a card which asked that all police help me in whichever way is possible—a reporter's police card. "That's all right," he said. "Ordinarily they don't want strangers to stand around here." He was very nice, very courteous.

Pier 90 is a city pier, and that is why the city's police are on guard. . . . If anything happened to the Normandie, or the Queen Mary, the city would have to answer some embarrassing questions.

I tried to count the port-holes along the limitless sides of the Queen Mary, but gave it up after 79 had been reached. There were too many, and the distance too gray and far.

A good guess is that the Queen Mary will sit tight until the end of the war. She and the Normandie would be Utopian prizes for a U-boat captain. . . . The Normandie looks ever larger, as she has not been painted, but remains in her original plumage, a gay sister of the waterfront.

But her decks are silent, her hold empty, and the cordon of police around her impenetrable.

It was getting colder by the minute. A concrete mixer rumbled past. Two mounties clattered by, the yellow P. D.'s on the blue of their saddle blankets glittering like jewels. A dirty, empty, tramp barge swung listlessly from her moorings.

"Better move along now," Officer 4447 suggested gently.

I hailed a passing taxicab and was driven back into the heart of the city.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Jan. 3, 1920.

Temperature dropped to 6 below zero, for first time in the winter.

Mabel Normand in "Mickey" was screen attraction at the Opera House.

David H. Bright moved from Marion avenue to new home at 31 Maple street.

Dr. John Maglott was appointed city health commissioner.

Mansfield's prospects for 1920 were bright, according to Edwin G. Slough, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

William T. Houston and family moved into new home at 164 Marion avenue.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Boyce, 72 Vennum avenue.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Jan. 3, 1935.

B. F. Ernst was recovering at his home on Dawson avenue from injuries received when his automobile crashed into a freight train at the Wayne street crossing.

Senator Philip Wolfe was named a member of the Ohio senate committee on committees at a Republican caucus in Columbus.

Mrs. Florence Ethel Keogle, 50, wife of Charles F. Keogle, died at the family home on Helen avenue.

William F. Lay, 163 Reba avenue, was appointed as city fireman to replace Earl Penney, who resigned because of ill health.

Dr. William H. Wolford was installed as president of the Kiwanis club succeeding Harry C. Finefrock.

When You Say Good-Bye to Teeth.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WHEN you say good-bye to your own your very own teeth, and take on a set of dentures, both upper and lower, you are in for some experiences, physical and psychological and spiritual, none of which is at all pleasant.

The upper plate does not usually give so much trouble, but the lower plate is a fiend. Adjustments have to be made to allow for shrinkage of the gums, and the question arises whether the irregularity will hurt the contour of the face. Gritty feelings occur in the mouth and changes in taste seem to be noticed.

The problem arises whether the dentures should be removed at night or whether removing it will allow drooping of the corners of the mouth and bring a change in the contour of the face.

The gums of both the upper and lower jaws do absorb and shrink for a period of several months after the teeth have been removed. It is sometimes advisable to put in a temporary denture until this shrinkage is over and the jaws have become stationary, at which time a satisfactory denture can be fitted which should never need to be changed.

Night Removal Advised.

There is no serious effect from removing the dentures at night. It is advised by most dentists. A number of powders are on the market which help in holding the dentures in place. If sore spots occur, the dentures themselves should be treated.

Whether taste is changed by wearing dentures is very doubtful. Dr. Donald A. Laird, the psychologist, has made some experiments on this subject. He used grapefruit juice, which could be processed so that it ranged over five varieties of taste, from sweetness to tartness. He then tried these on a large number of people to see what particular taste they preferred. Taking then a group of people who wore dentures he found very little difference in the preferences of the two groups or in the acuity of taste perception.

Dentures will not alter your sense of taste appreciably, if at all, but you must remember that taste preferences change with the passing years, whether one wears dentures or not, and probably you are preferring less sweet foods.

Marked Difference.

In the experimental group tested for taste preferences the one marked difference that was found was that the men with dentures were inclined to prefer the tart-flavored grapefruit juice rather than the sweet. This curve, however, is practically the same as the ordinary curve due to increasing age.

There is a gradual disappearance of taste buds throughout life. In early childhood there are taste buds on the inside of the cheeks and in the throat, in addition to the tongue. These disappear in adolescence, leaving only those on the tongue. In the later years there is quite a decline both structurally and functionally, in the taste buds. Foods which a child does not enjoy become palatable in maturity. The preference for sweet tastes is almost invariably replaced by a preference for [illegible] in time.

Incidentally it has been found that salt has a considerable influence upon taste preferences.

When You're "Taken for a Ride."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAVE you," she asks, "ever been taken for a ride, Elsie? Have people taken advantage of you, then sneered at you because they were able to do so?

"I'm asking because I'm one of those big-hearted saps who's always willing to 'lend a helping hand.' And do I get any thanks for it, even from my own family? I'll say I don't. Instead, I'm just about rated as the village idiot. And this from the people I've helped most.

"Yet they keep right on expecting me to help them. But if any one tries to touch them they always have 'previous obligations' to meet.

"I suppose there's some one like that in practically every family. I certainly wish you'd tell me the answer, if you know one. It's getting me down. For the first time I'm beginning to be bitter. So SOS!"

* * *

FOLKS like you? Yes, lady, thank heaven there are—millions of 'em. And what's the answer?

GO RIGHT ON BEING THE WAY YOU ARE—AND, THANK HEAVEN—YOU ARE THAT WAY.

But they take advantage of you?

Of course they do! Mooch on your money and save their own. Then sneer at you afterward. And compare their "smartness" with your softness. Surest thing, my dear.

BUT EVEN SO, YOU GET THE BEST OF THE BARGAIN. And even though you go out busted and they leave millions—you'll be the richer. For you're piling up something more and better than a bank roll. And you're enjoying an adventure which their money can't buy, nor their shrewdness achieve.

You're living life as a HUMAN BEING. Did you ever stop to think that BEING HUMAN is a large job, for which not everyone can qualify?

Many two-legged creatures with regular postoffice addresses aren't living as humans at all. They're still living like jungle beasts, following the old jungle law, outgrabbing, outsmarting the other brutes—chattering shrilly if they store up more nickels and dimes, just as their jungle cousins once chattered over their bloody "kill" or their acorn "cache."

But you've had the courage to attempt this larger, lovelier way of living which we call the human plan. You're daring to forget yourself . . . to put aside your own fear and greed and take a chance with the strange new adventure of generosity. And, of course, the stupid jungle dwellers think that's a swell break for them and proceed to make the most of it. As such creatures always have and always will.

Let them—and don't you worry! And never for a moment regret the course you've taken.

Spread of Bureaucracy.

In six years the number of public employes in the United States has increased 16 per cent and the amount of the payroll 25 per cent. The payroll outlays of local, state and federal budgets run from 30 to 50 per cent of the annual budgets. Only about half to 50 per cent of the anual budg- of the various public workers are under the merit system.

Commenting upon the situation the National Civil Service Reform League sees a danger in the fact that more are not under civil service regulations. However, the taxpayers should see that the real peril is in growth of bureaucracy and the spread of the idea of trying to live off the government.—Toledo Blade.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Go to Seed.

To go to seed is to pass one's peak, thence rapidly to expose oneself to the astringent influence of incapacity.

It is to become stale, overtrained, zestless; therefore to fail in effectiveness, dwindle in power, fall short in the ebbing of one's abilities.

An apt figure of speech is this phrase which we have borrowed from the lexicon of agriculture.

The farmer uses the words literally; for fruits and vegetables which, as he says, "have gone by" the time when they should have been picked and have begun to shrivel and wither so that soon there will be nothing left of them but skin holding seeds.

When Mother's Sick

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THIS MORNING my wife had the flu, and remained in bed the entire day. During the night I heated water on the old wood stove and kept the living room fire going. I hunted medicine on different shelves. I mixed a saline gargle, brewed hot tea and applied a vapor rub.

Outside, the strong east wind brought squalls of snow and piled the window frames. A little drift sifted through the casing and lay on the floor. The trees upon the slope across the road roared in the gale. I trekked outside three different times and felt the sting of sleet and crisp hard flakes against my face. It crunched beneath my feet when I stepped upon the porch. Within I saw the ruddy light of the hearth fire and shadows move along the walls and ceiling. Here was warmth and comfort and I was glad to reach this pleasant shelter.

When morning came my wife began to rest more comfortably. I hoped the children could remain asleep. Hardly had I made this wish until I heard a youngster cry that he was cold. His sleeping partner had pulled the covers off. Another child wanted a drink of water.

From then on I was a busy man. Shoes and underwear had been hastily put away at bedtime, and I could not find them in their proper order. Little stockings had been left inside out, or wadded like soft rag balls upon the floor. The children, in pajamas, danced about the wide-mouth stove and played with the toys that Santa lately brought. I was surprised and chagrined at the time it took to get the last wee youngster dressed. My wife slept through two hours of stress and strain, unmindful of the prattle in the living room and kitchen.

The carpet was littered with papers, books and toys. The rugs were heaved in little billows. I well knew by this time that the task I had assumed was more difficult than I had thought. I labored half the forenoon ministering to little wants and felt that I, in many ways had failed. As I stepped lightly into the bedroom and looked at the flushed moist face of my sleeping wife, I held a respectful estimate toward the work she does. Her path she plays in our humble, happy home is far more important than my own.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Walter Jones, who is making highway history by building the new Pennsylvania turnpike from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh, has received a surprising amount of co-operation from the Pennsylvania railroad.

The railroad also operates between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, and because of grades and curves, the trains take about four and a half hours. But competing with it, the new turnpike will permit automobiles to make the 160 miles in two hours. There will not be a red light on the entire stretch, few curves, and almost no hills.

The highway takes advantage of the old railroad route started by the Vanderbilts in competition with the Pennsylvania R. R., but never finished.

William H. Vanderbilt of the New York Central had threatened to bring the New York Central into southern Pennsylvania if the Pennsylvania R. R. entered his field along the Hudson. This competition was viewed so seriously that the Pennsylvania patched up a truce, but not before Vanderbilt had already constructed $20,000,000 worth of water-level tunnels now being used by the turnpike.

Now, however, the railroad is giving all sorts of co-operation to a highway which is even greater competition. It has lent experts to Jones and extended every possible facility.

The other day Colonel Charles D. Young, vice president of the railroad, dropped this significant remark to Jones:

"You may wonder why we have been so helpful to you. Well, it isn't merely because I like you. It's because we have five to six thousand buses operating around here and we've got to make 'em move faster. The highways are getting congested, and we believe people will pay extra for extra speed."

Note—The new turnpike will be a toll road, and this is the essence of Walter Jones' theory of road-building. He believes that new highways should not wait for increased taxes, but that people are willing to pay for streamlined, high-speed transportation.

Trade Treaties Fight.

IN THE coming congressional fight for renewal of the trade agreements act, the principal shock trooper will be a stocky man with thinning grey hair and a glint in his eye—Henry Francis Grady, assistant secretary of state.

With grim satisfaction, Grady is already pulling in his belt for the fight. He believes there has been too much apologizing, not enough forthright display of facts about trade agreements.

"We always get a bad press in the hearings," says Grady, "because the hearings are a sounding board for the opposition, with no rebuttal. The newsmen give a full account of what a lobbyist or a congressman has said about 'ruining' the shoe industry or the cattle industry, or the production of turkeys. And we never try to fight back."

Result, according to Grady, is a lot of false information. "The other day," he says, "two congressmen complained to me about our having reduced the tariff on lead. They were surprised when I told them we have never touched the tariff on lead.

"There is talk of an investigation of the trade agreements. Swell! Let's have it. We can take anybody on. I have twice offered to debate the subject with Vandenberg on the air, and he has declined both times."

S. S. Columbus.

AN INCORRECTLY interpreted weather forecast may have played an important part in the scuttling of the German luxury liner Columbus, according to Captain Harry A. Badt, skipper of the USS Tuscaloosa, who brought the survivors into New York.

Clouds and a rain squall had been predicted the day on which the British destroyer intercepted the 32,000-ton liner. The captain of the Columbus was planning to take advantage of this dirty weather to reach the north Atlantic where he would be comparatively safe in the long winter nights.

However, either the squalls were late or the Columbus made better than usual speed, with result that the tiny British destroyer Hyperion, about one-twentieth its size, fired a shot across its bow in perfect weather. Late that night, when Captain Daehne and his men were aboard the American cruiser and the Columbus was at the bottom of the sea, the storm broke in such fury that the Tuscaloosa was forced to reduce speed.

Captain Badt refused to disclose how long the Tuscaloosa had been "tailing" the Columbus, although he said he heard the firing of the British shot across its bow. Also he says that the Tuscaloosa did not assist in the detection of the fleeing vessel, whose huge bulk loomed high against the horizon, an easy mark for enemy look-outs.

Abolish Annapolis?

THE reorganization of the navy that will be sought at this session of congress won't be confined to an administrative shakeup if some of the Capitol Hill boys have their way.

They also are gunning for one of the most cherished strongholds of the brasshats—the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

The reformers wants to abolish the school in its present form. Representative Melvin J. Maas, chunky Minnesota World war flyer and ranking Republican member of the naval affairs committee, has a bill all ready that would do away with Annapolis as an undergraduate school, and transform it into a specializide institution with a two-year course for selected graduates of civilian colleges.

Target behind this proposed transformation is the existing system of retiring large numbers of young naval officers—ensigns, junior lieutenants and lieutenants—after the government has spent millions educating and training them.

Maas has compiled some sensational figures on this yearly exodus. They show that after fourteen years only 28 out of every 100 Annapolis graduates still remain in the service. The rest, he claims, have been forced out on various grounds to make room for the annual influx of new graduates.

Note—Generally agreed, however, is the fact that the cut-throat competitive system of the navy is far more efficient than the promotion-by-age system in the army.

U. S. INQUIRIES IN ESPIONAGE BURDEN TO FBI

Hoover Tells Solons Demands of Federal Bureau Heaviest for 15 Years.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, reported to congress today that demands on the bureau in the 1939 fiscal year were the heaviest in 15 years, largely as the result of espionage investigations.

He attributed part of the increase to inquiries into anti-trust law violations and the federal judiciary.

Hoover said that espionage cases totaled 1,651, compared with 250 in the 1938 fiscal year and an average of 35 in each of the five preceding years.

As many as 200 FBI agents worked simultaneously on an investigation of the fertilizer industry for the anti-trust division of the justice department, Hoover said.

Attorney General Murphy, making his first annual report, described federal criminal procedure as "highly unsatisfactory" and urged congress to enact legislation giving the supreme court power to revise the rules.

Thurman Arnold, chief of the anti-trust division, said that his unit needed additional personnel to handle complaints.

Need Prison Program.

Another urgent need of the justice department, according to the report of James V. Bennett, director of the federal prisons bureau, is "a broad, long-range prison building program." By June 30, 1941, he said, it is estimated there will be 2,790 more inmates than federal prisons can house.

Attorney General Murphy said he felt that "considerable confusion and lack of uniformity" resulted from the present laws governing handling of criminal cases.

The attorney general recommended:

That congress not consider legislation concerning administrative law until a special committee appointed by Murphy reports on its study.

Additional funds for the federal bureau of investigation to provide for greater activity against espionage and sabotage.

Increased facilities for housing federal prisoners.

Legislation to require registration of all firearms and a small transfer tax for informative purposes.

Murphy said that "the honest law-abiding citizen" should no more object to registering his firearms (which would include sporting weapons) than he would object to registering his automobile.

ABOVE AVERAGE

County's Sales Tax Receipts Tops Figure for State.

Richland county's sales tax receipts showed 22.4 per cent increase in 1939 over the preceding year while the average gain for Ohio was only 15.9 per cent, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright had reported today.

The county's collections amounted to approximately $500,000 for the year as compared with about $410,000 for 1938.

For the week ending Dec. 16, the period of heaviest Christmas buying, the county produced $15,509 in tax receipts, a marked gain over the same week of 1938. The increase in Ohio was more than $200,000 for the same week.

Total collections for the state in 1939 were nearly $45,000,000, an increase of approximately $6,000,000 over receipts in 1938.

Tells Rotary of Hubbard's Famed Garcia Message

How the late Elbert Hubbard came to write his famous "Message to Garcia," and how East Aurora, N. Y., and the Roycroft Shops attained nation-wide prominence as a result thereof, was told at Tuesday's Rotary club meeting by Kenneth Dirlam, of the Mansfield Building and Loan association, who was at one time sales manager of the Roycroft organization.

Based on an incident of the Spanish-American war, the "Message to Garcia" first appeared in the Philistine magazine, and was later re-printed to the extent of millions of copies, for distribution by business organizations. Through 40 years it has been regarded as among the finest examples of inspirational literature ever written.

David R. Phillips, member of the Dover Rotary club, was a guest at the meeting, which was held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

A musical program is planned for next Tuesday's meeting at which LeMoine Derr will preside.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

The date on the calendar that hung on the wall back of the desk in the small office adjacent to Isobel Chandler's was March 17. Neither the calendar nor the desk had been there a little more than a fortnight before when Fabienne Seymour first came to the Park-Plaza hospital. There had been only a chair, a lounge and a mirror.

"If you've any use for this room you may have it," Mrs. Chandler had told the girl. "You may find other things you'd like to do here. We'll talk over any ideas you have and see if they're practical."

Fabienne's ideas had flowed in rapid succession and now, in so short a time, she had become a useful volunteer worker with an office of her own.

On her desk there was a file of the backgrounds of each little charity patient, rehabilitation work indicated for the future. This had been Fabienne's idea—to interview the parents, to make contacts with social organizations that would take up the cases if there should be future needs. There was also a small private file of Fabienne's friends who could afford to help financially in her projects.

She called on Camilla Morse saying, "Darling, I've done a complete right-about face, as you probably know, and I'm horribly ashamed of the way I treated you when you wanted me to serve on your committees. Because now I want your help."

Camilla groaned. "I might have known I was heading for trouble when I came in answer to your call. You certainly have done a right-about! Well, what can I do?"

"Open a fresh air camp where we can send our convalescents," Fabienne said promptly.

"Come, Fabienne! Not my Easthampton place!"

"No, Camilla, I don't care where it is so long as it's some place in the country. We ought to be able to get a big farmhouse somewhere for about a hundred a month. I'll pay the rent, but you and your friends are going to raise the maintenance money. You'll head the committee, get Lulu and Frances and Jane and Gloria—" She launched into an enthusiastic plan for Camilla's group to raise money.

When she finished and Camilla had agreed to try Fabienne's suggestions, she said, "Fab, if anyone had ever made a bet with me that you'd turn out to be a Florence Nightingale, I certainly would have taken it up and thought I'd be sure to win."

Fabienne laughed. "Don't be deceived by the white uniform. Mrs. Chandler suggested that I wear it because it's more in keeping with the whole scheme."

Camilla eyed her knowingly. "Who's the doctor in the case?" she asked.

"Doctor?" Fabienne answered, knowing perfectly well that her cheeks colored swiftly as Camilla's dart struck home.

"The doctor you've fallen in love with."

"Nonsense!" Fabienne pronounced. "I'm doing this work because I love it. You must come down and see our Willoughby house actors. We're opening our first play on Tuesday. That's tomorrow. Admission free or five dollars per person to those who can afford it. You can afford it."

Camilla fled, saying, "You'll take my last cent if I don't get out this minute."

Fabienne went to the elevator with her. "By the way," Camilla said while they waited for the car to come up, "Who do you think we ran into last night? Nicky! At the Persian room at the Plaza."

"Really? You know Nicky's settled down a lot. He's working."

"Yes, he told us. We stopped at his table for a moment. He was with a very attractive girl. I wonder if you've ever met her . . . her name was Chapell or something like that."

"Chapman? Could that be it?" Fabienne asked, surprised. Of course it was surprise—it couldn't be jealousy. But Nicky and Ellen didn't have any dates together except in foursomes. She remembered that Ellen had not been in when she got home the night before, hadn't come in until long after Fabienne was asleep.

"Yes, that was the name. I thought she was quite unusual."

"Plain, but she has a great deal of charm, Camilla. She's one of my best friends. I live with her."

"Oh," Camilla said, refraining from repeating that Ellen was quite attractive. There had been a sparkle and glow about her that Camilla and her husband had observed.

Fabienne had never seen Ellen as she looked that night at the Plaza with white flowers tucked into her dark hair that she had brushed into a fluff on the back of her neck. The white faille gown she wore was one that Fabienne had given her and its adroit lines had given fluidity to Ellen's slight figure so often obscured by the cut of her own inexpensive clothes. This gown had a simple fitted bodice and a skirt that flowed out in stiff wide folds to give her added height and bring out the natural dignity that was part of her.

Coupled with this was the glow that came from sheer enjoyment and the happiness that being with Nicky lent to her. The effect was not only attractive to Nicky, it was breath taking.

The date that came with such surprise to Fabienne was almost as much of a surprise to Nicky and Ellen. Nicky hadn't seen either of the girls since the day they went up to Bill Mallory's country place. He'd called up about eight merely to talk to them, having had a hard day at the office. Ellen answered, telling him that Fabienne was at Willoughby house for a dress rehearsal and probably wouldn't return until eleven.

"Ah," Nicky said pleased. "A chance to get you alone. Get into your party clothes and I'll take you dancing. I'll call for you in half an hour."

Promptly half an hour later Nicky appeared, in tails and top hat with a florist's box in his hand.

"My, but you look grand!" Ellen said, dimpling in her happiness. "You're very much dressed up."

"Why not?" he returned, pinning the white flowers in her dark hair. "I've got a date with my best girl, haven't I?"

"Have you?" she said, and was immediately covered with confusion, saying hastily, "Where are we going?"

"To dance to Eddy Duchin's music, to drink champagne and to talk. I've got a lot of things to say to you."

"Let's do the dancing first," she said.

* * *

The beautiful Persian room at the Plaza was not crowded. They had the dance floor almost to themselves, drifting smoothly to soft music. Ellen fitted lightly into Nicky's arms as if she belonged there, the top of her head coming to his chin. She wondered if he could feel the fast beating of her heart lying so close to the satin lapel of his coat. They danced as if they had danced together all their lives, saying nothing that would disturb their continuity of movement.

"You dance like an angel," Nicky told her, taking her back to their table.

Ellen laughed. "Would you believe I won a Charleston contest when I went to college? Can you believe I was ever that giddy, Nicky?"

"Giddy? No! Not you! But gay and sweet and lovely and kind and . . . Ellen, I'm falling in love with you."

"Oh, Nicky!" she said in a stricken voice.

"Is there any reason why I shouldn't tell you?"

She nodded unhappily. "Not now, you shouldn't," she said.

"Later?"

"Perhaps," she said, "later . . . when we all know where we are." She would not explain to him what she meant.

OHIO'S TRAFFIC TOLL 67 HIGHER

Deaths for 1939 Hit 1,775 But Figure's 889 Lower Than in 1937.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio traffic killed 1,775 persons in 1939.

The toll, compiled by the Associated Press, was slightly higher than in 1938, when 1,708 died in street and highway accidents. In 1937, fatalities totaled 2,664.

Carelessness was the chief contributing factor to fatal accidents, most county officials agreed, with excessive speed and drunken driving running a close race for cause No. 2. A majority of the accidents occurred at night.

With the exception of Columbus and Youngstown, the death list in the state's metropolitan centers was below that of 1938. Cleveland officials credited a reduction to 111 from 1938's 137 to an intensive safety campaign, particularly for pedestrians.

A decrease at Cincinnati from 131 deaths in 1938 to 112 in 1939 was due, authorities claimed, to an anti-speed campaign, employment of a traffic engineer and a traffic school conducted by police. Brake tests will be compulsory after April.

Franklin county deaths leaped to 96 from 66 in 1938, while Mahoning county fatalities went to 60, eight more than in the preceding year.

Not a single county escaped, although two—Morgan and Union—had but one. Two deaths each were recorded by Brown, Henry, Meigs and Shelby counties.

Several non-metropolitan areas had heavy increases. Thirty-one persons were killed in Columbiana county compared with 13 in 1938. Lorain county had 42 against a previous 30 and Allen county 36 against 20.

It's Easy To Stop Quarrels, Just Cease

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Why is it," a young wife writes me, "that during all our engagement of over two years we never quarreled, and now that we are married and should be perfectly happy, we quarrel all the time?"

Nothing is easier to answer than this question. Instead of my answering it, I'll try substituting a letter from a young husband which states: "Before Dorothy and I were married it was a case of 'yes, yes' with her, but now everything seems to be a case of 'no, no.'"

As a postscript, I might add that old one, "when you've caught the streetcar you stop running." Lamentably sad but true that after marriage people often do not feel obliged to go through the motions of being considerate, well bred, or affectionate. With the wedding garments, alas, too often are folded away good manners.

The girl who listened to you as if you spoke with the tongues of angels is plainly bored when you discuss neutrality or cash and carry. She seems to have her own ideas on the subject and these you feel she's got from her own family, all of whom are hopelessly misinformed.

And you remember how she used to love to go fishing with you, before the final vows were said, but since she hates the mess, and shivers if she is supposed to bait the hook. And she'll ask "what's the use of sitting in the sun fishing all day, when fish may be bought at the chain store, cleaned and ready for the pan, at 12 and 14 cents a pound?" It's sadly different, all of these "before and after" painful discoveries.

And why, oh why, does the little woman rush off to her mother to be comforted, when you give a grudging nod to the gown she made out of that bargain counter remnant? It's a replica, she tells you proudly, of that imported thing she saw in the Paris shop window. She imagined you'd be crazy over it, the way you were over every new dress she had before you were married. But when she called your attention to it, all you said was: "Uh, huh, did you really need it, and how much did it cost?"

It's all so different, after you've stopped running and caught the car. You take her as a matter of course, and she takes you for one of the uninspired.

It's horrible to admit it, but the only good times you really have are after those horrid spats when you make charges and she makes counter-charges. And the dull monotony of domestic life is pepped up by good ringing free-for-alls in which you say things you could never have imagined yourself saying before you were married, and she goes you one better. And then she sits down to have a good cry. Somehow or other, you kiss and make up and everything goes smoothly until you liven things up by more arguments, which end the same way.

The way to stop quarreling is so simple that no one, or at least very few, will apply the remedy. It is just to stop. Imagine you're engaged instead of married. Imagine that the pursuit is on, that you're still chasing the street car. And that the uncensored word may lose him or her, as indeed it often has, after you are married. Stop, look, listen—don't quarrel!

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Yes, I heard her call Mr. Veritzen last night," I said. "My hearing the call at first was an accident, but afterward, I am sorry to say, I deliberately listened to the conversation."

"Why do you say you are sorry?" she asked. "I am not sorry you listened. Indeed, I should have regretted it deeply had you shut your door instead of leaving it ajar, for then I should have been unable to check what I learned myself. You see, my door is not as near the telephone as yours, and I was unable to hear all she said. Did you hear everything?"

"Yes," I answered, and was quite sure what her next query would be.

"Would you mind telling me what you heard?" she asked, and when I hesitated, she spoke again quickly, with a note of appeal in her voice.

"I know this isn't exactly an ethical procedure," she said with a smile that savored more of sadness than of mirth. "But Olina is my daughter; I am responsible for her conduct, and I have a right to find out what she is doing by any means within my reach."

"But I am not—" I began dubiously, but she put up her hand in graceful but emphatic protest at my interruption.

"You are Mary's aunt, and in duty bound to protect her, even if the protection involves what might be considered eavesdropping," she said, and so I broke into a hurried recapitulation of the one-sided telephone conversation I had heard.

"Can it be," she said, "that she is asking Phil for some favor or that he has asked her aid for something he wishes done, and all without my knowledge?"

She dropped her musing tone, and threw an abrupt question at me.

"Have you any theory about this?"

My reply was reluctant.

"Yes, I have, but I am afraid voicing it may hurt you."

"Do I look like a woman who tries to avoid unpleasantness?" she countered.

"I think you are one of the bravest women I know," I told her, and, without further protest, plunged into the story of the suspicion Lillian and I entertained, that Philip Veritzen meant to take the leading role in my play away from Mary after she should give at rehearsal the stilted rendition in which he had drilled her. I also told her of the producer's repeated attempts to have the cast come over to the farm for rehearsals while I was away, and of my steadfast refusal to permit Mary to appear without me.

Queen Olga's face grew sterner by the second as I talked. At my last words she nodded.

"That is very wise," she said. "But this is terrible—about Phil. To think that he could be capable of such meanness and trickery! And it looks as though Olina were helping him. My own daughter! Her youth might be some excuse for her, but there can be none for Phil. And to think that he was the hero of my youthful dreams!"

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Jan. 4.

Another strenuous day, in which sudden and surprising events may prove disconcerting if not devastating, is indicated by the lunar and mutual figures. Unpredictable situations which may arise call for decisive action; lightning change in plans, associations or surroundings may be required. When conditions seem confused and baffling, seek the wise counsel of "higher ups" and do not reject assistance or advice from an elderly woman. Shun extravagance, strife and impetuosity, as well as fickleness, in private relations,.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of upheaval, with sudden and unpredictable developments of radical effect and possibly breath-taking experience. Change of plans, objectives and associates are imminent. When overwhelmed by surprise, confusion and indicision, confer with those in high places or with friendly women of advanced years. Avoid extravagance, rash and impulsive conduct and fickle affections.

Those whose birthday it is may be capable and enterprising, but may have sudden and peculiar vicissitudes in life. Superiors or elders may be of benefit in helping adjustments or clarifying suspicious circumstances.

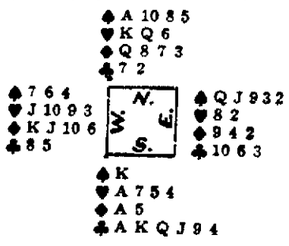
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A SHORT SUIT SQUEEZE

Most squeeze plays mature when the final card of a long suit is played. This is not necessarily so, however. Upon rare occasions, the situation regarding entries is such that the long suit must be run off before the elements of the squeeze play can be built up, the squeeze itself then being executed by means of a high or set-up card in a shorter suit.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South began this deal with 1-Club. North bid 1-Spade. South 3-Clubs, North 3-Diamonds, South 4-No Trumps (Blackwood), North 5-Diamonds to show one ace, South 5-No Trumps, North 6-Diamonds to show one king, and South 7-Clubs. If North had shown two kings, South would have bid the grand slam in No Trump.

West led the heart J, and South could count only 12 tricks. A squeeze was needed for the thirteenth. He won the heart lead with dummy's Q, ran all of the clubs, laid down the spake K and diamond A then led to the heart K. When he now played the dummy's spade A, discarding a diamond, West was squeezed. If he tossed away his diamond K, he would build up dummy's diamond Q. If he discarded from his heart 10 and 9, he would establish declarer's heart 7, which is the choice of evils he selected.

When this deal was shown to one eastern tournament veteran, he said: "That looks like one of Ed Kenton's jobs." It was. The Knickerbocker Whist club star came upon it in a rubber game.

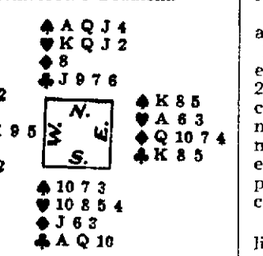
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable. North-South part score 30.)

If North bids 1-Spade here, South 1-No Trump and North 2-No Trumps, what is the correct defense?

Grammatical Errors At Home

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

We parents sometimes slip grammatically. Perhaps we revert to some bad form of expression learned in early childhood. When we are on guard, we may be very accurate in this matter. Sometimes, however, we may not be quite sure about the correctness of the form of statement we wish to make.

The four verbs which seem to bother people most are sit, set, lie, lay and their different forms.

If we parents use them wrong, our children surely will. Here is some practice for you Read these correct sentences over and over and make other sentences like them.

Correct Usage.

It is hard to sit still. Nervous children should lie down for several minutes before the evening meal. The child sat beside his mother.

Little Ossie lay still for 15 minutes before he went to sleep. A good baby often sits or lies alone amusing himself Yesterday the spoiled child lay on the floor bumping his head.

Too bad every mother cannot lie down every afternoon for a nap. The spoiled child climbed upon the table and sat upon the butter. After little Nora had lain on her bed for an hour she got up to play. The baby has been lying for half an hour without any cover in a cold room.

The infant lay and kicked and talked to himself. When Ned is very naughty, his mother makes him sit in a chair for 20 minutes. You can make a child lie down but you can't make him go to sleep Orpha's mother lies down for a nap every afternoon. Never set a pan of water where the baby can reach it.

The wise mother laid the little child with the tantrum on the floor and walked away from him. After he had lain there for a few minutes he recovered.

Good Speech at Home.

If a child hears good speech at home, he will choose on his own accord to use good English when he is about 12 or 14. And if he doesn't hear good English at home, what sense is there in correction by his parents?

When your child makes an error in English, don't scold him, nor laugh at him. Kindly, quietly say the correct statement for him. You should rarely even do so much, certainly not if your intrusion should vex him. At many times it will be well to say nothing to the child about his English errors.

All the Myers' children, especially the boys, use the double negative freely at home and without correction between the ages of about six and 12. After that they chose, on their initiative, to abandon it and other childish forms of speech.
